WHILE HE PRAYEDTheodore Shonts Tells How
His Son-in-Law Died.

WIFE'S ARMS ABOUT DUKE

Shonts Says Stroke Came as His Daughter and Duke Were Kneeling, and Girl Caught Husband.
Shonts Defends Character of the Duke.

New York, June 2.—On his return from Paris today Theodore P. Shonts, president of the Interborough-Metropolitan Company, declared that the reports that the death of his son-in-law, the Duke de Chauvins, was due to indulgence in opium were infamous libels. Mr. Shonts said that the duke's death was caused by heart disease and that he was not addicted to the use of drugs.

"The duke and my daughter were kneeling at their bedside in prayer," said Mr. Shonts, "when the stroke came upon him that carried him off before medical aid could be summoned."

Duke Maligned.
"The memory of the duke has been grossly maligned, and outrageous reports were printed about the manner and cause of his death. The facts are this: On the afternoon of the day on which he died, the duke and my daughter were out riding. They dined together and then retired to their apartment early."

"They were kneeling close together and the duke held one arm about his wife's shoulder. Suddenly he lurched forward and then tumbled unconscious at my daughter's feet. He was a big man and she a slight girl, but she lifted him bodily on the bed and screamed for aid. He was dead before anything could be done for him."

Daughter Having.
"Upon arrival in Paris I found my daughter in an alarming condition. Until two weeks ago we feared that her reason had gone and would never return. It is just two weeks ago Sunday when the turn for the better came."

"My wife and one of my daughters will remain with the duchess throughout the summer. The relatives of the duke have been more than kind to my daughter. They have lived with her in another in trying to do for her. The duchess d'Uzes was more than a sister to her, so that she will be among sympathetic friends while she remains in France."

Ball Player Sheppard May Lose Eye.
Chicago, June 2.—James T. Sheppard, leader of the Chicago National League baseball team, was seriously injured today when a bottle of ammonia exploded before his face. His left eye may be permanently blinded. Sheppard had not been playing for several days because of an ailment of the eye. He was about to turn for the better when the explosion occurred.

The Louisiana Democrats.
Baton Rouge, La., June 2.—Many of the delegates to the democratic state convention which assembled here tomorrow are arriving here tonight. Sentiment among those who have already arrived is strong in favor of the delegates to the democratic national convention at Denver being instructed for Hon. W. J. Bryan.

Yachts to Race to Bermuda.
Marblehead, Mass., June 2.—Shortly after 11 o'clock the Corinthian, a 100-foot sailing yacht, will start from Marblehead Rock for an ocean race of approximately 675 nautical miles to Hamilton, Bermuda. The contest is under the joint auspices of the Corinthian and Royal Bermuda Yacht Clubs.

They Fear a Flood.
St. Louis, Mo., June 2.—Apprehensive lest the Mississippi river, which tonight registers 28.4 feet, a rise of 8 in 24 hours, and is within 1.8 of the flood stage, will inundate the city, families living in the lower portions of East St. Louis are abandoning their homes. A dozen blocks in East St. Louis are already surrounded by water, and a further rise of 3 feet would do considerable damage.

Arkansas River Receding.
Little Rock, Ark., June 2.—Although the Arkansas river is still 2 feet above the flood stage here, it is steadily receding, and the extreme pressure has been withdrawn from the levees. Perilous river men and planters say it is worst of the present flood is past.

Rev. Dr. Cooke Chosen Editor.
Baltimore, Md., June 2.—Rev. Dr. R. J. Cooke, of Tennessee, was today selected editor of all the book publications of the Methodist Episcopal church. This action was taken at a meeting of the general book committee, which made up of representatives of all the general conference districts of the denomination.

Shillito for Director.
New York, June 2.—Stewart Shillito, of Cincinnati, has been elected a director of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, to succeed Charles Lanier, who has resigned, owing to ill health. The election was announced today. All the other retiring directors were re-elected at the annual meeting, which was held on Monday. There was no opposition to the administration ticket, and only 93 policyholders participated in the election.

DREAM GIRL TO WED
MAN WHO WATCHED HER.

East St. Louis, Ill., June 2.—Miss Lida Bridges, "dream girl" who slept four days last fall and returned to consciousness with a vivid description of heaven, will soon marry Raleigh Taylor, a young railroad man of this city, who sat by her side during all the time she was in a comatose state. Miss Bridges fell into her four days' sleep following a long illness. When she awoke she told of her rambling through the groves and meadows of heaven and repeated verbatim conversations that she had had with her grandfather and four brothers who are dead.

Foully Slandered in Pamphlet
Circulated by Hoke Smith's Managers—Governor Described as "Crafty Polititician."

Augusta, Ga., June 2.—(Special.)—Thomas E. Watson, by a special friend, tonight sent the following letter to the Joe Brown meeting, and it was there read tonight:

"It is known to every well-informed citizen in the state that on the night of September 1, 1904, I made a speech in the city of Atlanta, in the courts of which I ridiculed the fear of negro domination which the democratic leaders had so often used as a bugaboo to compel the southern people to submit to the political tyranny of Wall street and eastern capitalists. In that speech I said in substance: 'If you really are as much afraid of negro domination as you say you are, I here and now propose to you that if you will run a candidate on the democratic ticket for governor of Georgia and pledge this candidate to the disfranchisement of the negro just as he has been disfranchised in other southern states, I pledge you the support of the people's party for that candidate.'

AND HOKE SMITH APPEARS

"Some months after this speech was delivered Congressman Hardwick came to my house and told me that if I was in earnest on that proposition which I had made on the night of September 1, in Atlanta, he thought that the disfranchisement law could be adopted in Georgia. We discussed the subject fully from that point of view, and we finally decided on the main planks of the platform, and we also agreed upon the candidate who was to make the race. This was the Honorable Pope Brown."

"After the campaign had been under way for some weeks, and everything was moving smoothly I was astonished to read in the papers that Pope Brown had retired and that Hoke Smith had taken his place. No one had consulted me on the subject of making any change, and I felt greatly disatisfied that a change had been made. There were certain good reasons why it was extremely difficult and distasteful for me to support Hoke Smith. I wrote Mr. Hardwick and to John Temple Graves, both of whom were in my confidence, and Mr. Hardwick came to see me about it. He assured me that he had acted in the utmost good faith, thinking that it would be all right with me. He appealed to me on account of the principle at stake to yield my objection to Hoke Smith, and to give him my cordial support. After several weeks of hesitation, during which interval Hoke Smith had publicly and privately disclaimed the making of certain charges against me in Augusta, which I had been informed he had made, I finally decided on account of the principle involved to do what I could for him. Everybody knows how hot was the campaign of 1906, and how loyal was my support of Hoke Smith."

WATSON FOUGHT HIS FRIENDS

IN ORDER TO AID HOKE SMITH
"In order to keep faith with Congressman Hardwick and with Hoke Smith I had to come in temporary collision with some of the best friends that I had ever had. Some of these men had been my school mates, some had been my comrades in the hot fights when populism was struggling for its life in the '90s. No man ever went through a more trying ordeal than I did in the campaign of 1906. There was absolutely nothing in it for me except hard knocks. I had no ax to grind, and no reward to expect."

"Believing that it was essential to the independence of the white voter that the menace of negro domination be removed by his disfranchisement I supported Hoke Smith because he was running upon a platform which as a citizen of Georgia I believed promised here a great benefit."

"After the legislature of 1906 adjourned there was a feeling of disappointment that so little had been accomplished. The anti-lobby bill and the measure proposed for a system of primaries which would be as fair to the out as to the ins, together with several other important pieces of legislation, had failed to become laws, but with the understanding that an extra session was to be called and that the governor would do all in his power at the extra session to redeem those of his pledges which the legislature had repudiated, I gave him, in The Jeffersonian Magazine and in my paper, unstinted and generous praise."

SENATE TOCAWON
BY CHAMBERLAINDemocrat Named for Senate in Oregon by Popular Vote.

G. O. P. LEGISLATURE BOUND

Legislature Is Strongly Republican,
but Is Pledged to Abide by the Popular Vote and Send a Democrat to the United States Senate.

Portland, Ore., June 2.—Governor George E. Chamberlain, democrat, is the choice of the people of Oregon for the United States senatorship, to succeed Charles W. Fulton, republican, and a republican legislature has been chosen to elect him. Chamberlain's majority over his opponent Henry M. Calk, republican, will exceed 1,000, it is believed.

A Personal Triumph.

Chamberlain's victory is in the nature of a personal triumph. Oregon normally is republican, and in 1904 Roosevelt's plurality was 42,424. Chamberlain has twice been elected governor of the state.

The selection of Chamberlain by the people is but a preliminary step to the senatorship. In Oregon candidates for the legislature align themselves either in the "Statement, No. 1" column, or in the "Anti-Statement, No. 1" column.

"Statement No. 1" is a pledge to support in the legislature the candidate having the endorsement of the people, and the anti-statement is a pledge to support either in the "Statement, No. 1" column, or in the "Anti-Statement, No. 1" column.

The completion of the next legislature, as indicated by the returns, will be almost unanimously republican, and it may be the lot of a republican legislature to send a democrat to the senate. Already there is talk of defections from the ranks of the "Statement No. 1" legislature, and it is not impossible that in the seven months intervening between now and the date of the next session of the legislature some plan may be devised to defeat Chamberlain and send a republican to the United States senate.

From the figures at hand it would appear that there will be about 48 "Statement No. 1" men in the next legislature. It requires 46 votes to elect.

Prohibition was an important feature in the election, the anti-saloon element making a surprising showing. From the returns at hand it is believed that nine-tenths of the counties voted "dry" in doubt, 4; now dry, 1; partly dry, 3.

Equal suffrage has lost again.

AUGUSTA LOUISE GWINN
IS SHOT BY HER SISTER

Revolver Was Accidentally Discharged—Bullet Not Yet

Found.

Sitting on the back steps of her parents' home, 409 Whitehall street, yesterday afternoon, unconscious of any danger, little Augusta Louise Gwinn, 13 years of age, was shot in the right side by her sister, Miss Janie Gwinn, who accidentally discharged a 32-caliber revolver she was holding.

The wounded child, still conscious, was hurried to the Presbyterian hospital, where an operation was performed. The physicians failed to find the bullet after nearly two hours of searching.

Miss Janie Gwinn is remembered as having captured a burglar at the point of a pistol about a year ago. Both the young ladies are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Louis E. Gwinn.

Doctors Favor Vital Section.

Chicago, June 2.—Vital-section came in for much attention by delegates to the convention of the American Medical Association which opened here today, and the subject of significant attention by the governing board of the organization. By a unanimous vote the house of delegates approved a recommendation to the board of trustees to create a commission, the sole duty of which shall be to watch and oppose the return of laws intended to abolish vital-section.

Striking Women Killed.

Vigneux, June 2.—Twelve gendarmes, while attempting to arrest a striker here today, were surrounded by two hundred of the workmen. Believing that they were in danger of their lives, the gendarmes used their weapons. Reinforcements of both parties soon reached the scene, and in the fight with revolvers two workmen were killed and six wounded. Four gendarmes were wounded.

FULL ELECTION RETURNS

BY THE CONSTITUTION

The full election returns will be given by The Constitution at the corner of Peachtree and Marietta streets Thursday evening, where the results will be thrown upon a canvas by a stereopticon.

All the returns throughout the state will be given. Arrangements have been perfected whereby these returns will be full and complete. There will be no delay, but just as fast as the counts are made in the counties the result will be known in Atlanta.

A man will be placed at each ward in the city, and at each county precinct in Fulton county, who will send in the returns as fast as each count is made. By 9 o'clock those who watch The Des Moines, Ia., June 2.—At midnight incomplete returns from the primary election held in Iowa today indicate a close race for the republican nomination for United States senator between Senator Allison and Governor Cummins. Both sides are claiming a majority of from 10,000 to 20,000.

The result will probably not be determined until the official count tomorrow.

The republican nomination for governor is even more uncertain. Carroll is running closely with Cummins, and Carroll with Allison.

The democrats nominated Frederick E. White for governor, without opposition, as they did the remainder of their ticket. Claude B. Porter, former candidate for governor on the democratic ticket, was nominated for United States senator without opposition.

FINAL RALLIES HELD

Overflow.ATLANTA CENTER OF STORM
OF POLITICAL ENTHUSIASM

Atlanta was the core of the cyclone of political excitement that is sweeping over Georgia. Never in the history of the city did people turn out in such large numbers to attend political meetings, or cheer so long and lustily for the respective favorites.

Two theaters were packed to their doors, and in front of each surging crowd were gathered, which demanded continuous addresses from the orators who were sent to talk to those who could not get indoors. At the Orpheum Governor Smith was making the last address of his remarkable campaign, and the fifth he has made in Fulton county since Hon. Joseph M. Brown announced for governor. At the Bijou a Brown rally was held, with Hon. Roland Ellis of Bibb, Hon. Madison Bell of Fulton, and former Governor Joseph M. Terrell as the chief speakers. Perhaps the most dramatic event of the evening was the great ovation given former Governor Terrell.

A number of orators were required at each of the theaters to entertain the overflow meetings.

When the meetings adjourned, and the thousands of partisans poured together on Marietta street there were fears of trouble, but none occurred. There was much good-natured "ragging," mingled with a healthy cheering, but everybody kept in a good humor, no matter how high the enthusiasm ran. The Smith contingent, headed by a band, marched to the mansion, where another speech was made by the governor. The Brown supporters gathered at the corner of Peachtree and Marietta, where clippings in the interest of their favorite were being displayed by a stereopticon. The two crowds were constantly pouring through each other, and there was no end of lung-splitting in the endeavor to cheer louder than anybody else. The result was naturally that a fog horn of proper capacity would have had about the same effect on the public ear.

It was a wild night, so far as cheering and waving of handkerchiefs were concerned, but for real fatalities there was nothing doing.

When Representative Madison Bell,

Fulton county, spoke of "Governor Terrell's administration, which was marked by prosperity," at the Brown rally at the Bijou, last night, the large audience of voters which packed the house applauded the name of the former governor until he was forced to rise from his seat on the stage and bow his acknowledgments to the audience.

When Mr. Bell had been succeeded by Hon. Roland Ellis, of Bibb county, some one in the audience yelled:

"Big Joe."

"Terrell, Terrell, Terrell!"

This was caught up, and cries of "Terrell," "Terrell," "Terrell" reverberated through the house until the ex-governor was compelled to rise and make his first campaign speech since he retired to private life and the practice of law.

It was an ovation which would have been a compliment to any man, and it moved the speaker until he was filled with fiery enthusiasm, and made what his friends declared to be "the best campaign speech he had ever made in the interests of himself or any one else."

It was a tribute to one of Mr. Terrell's appointees and was devoid of vilification to any one else.

The governor began his speech simply by saying: "My friends, any one who could witness this gathering tonight would know that the heart of Fulton county is with south Georgia, middle Georgia and north Georgia in the determination to nominate on Thursday Joseph M. Brown for governor."

"Three years ago it was by an official act of mine that he was named railroad commissioner. G. Gunby Jordan, of Columbus, resigned and I told him that I would accept his resignation only when he named a man to succeed him and make an acceptable commissioner. Without a moment's hesitation he named—Joseph M. Brown."

Brown Managers.

One more day, and then the Battle of the Ballot.

With the torch-light procession to-night by the Fulton County Joe Brown Club and the speaking at its close, the campaign inaugurated in the interest of the candidacy of Hon. Joseph M. Brown for governor will come to a close.

Governor Smith closed his campaign for reelection at the Orpheum theater last night.

Today the friends of both are pulling might and main to have their forces battalioned and martialled for the battle of the morrow.

At the campaign headquarters of each yesterday the final orders were being issued to the lieutenants in the field over the state.

Both candidates were in the city throughout the day.

Governor Smith arrived from south Georgia early in the day and spent much of his time at his headquarters in the Steiner-Himey building and with Chairman J. L. Anderson in the Peters building. He was on the street mixing with his friends, too, for some time during the morning.

Mr. Brown was at his headquarters in the New Kimball, where he was receiving callers throughout the day.

At the close of the day Campaign Manager Smith issued a statement to the Brown followers throughout the city, calling upon them to vote early on the day of the primary, and not to put it off.

At both headquarters the utmost confidence was expressed as to the outcome of the primary on Thursday, and each expressed satisfaction as to the way the campaign had been conducted.

The registration in Fulton county has been announced at 17,816, the largest registration ever recorded in the city, and which will give Fulton county possibly 9 per cent of the voting strength of the entire state.

Similar increases in registration in the various city counties makes these counties the most sought after, under the majority plan, and both candidates are moving everything to carry these counties by as large majorities as possible.

The subcommittee of the "opposition" ticket for democratic executive committee on yesterday gave out the following statement:

"Whatever the vote cast may be, twenty members from the county at large, two members from each ward, and one from each country precinct must be elected.

"The present committee, which offers to succeed itself in office, has, by its ruling, prevented an expression of the choice of the people, as far as possible, and has only made it possible for the people to choose twenty-seven members from the 'opposition' ticket.

"We, therefore, suggest that the friends of fair play vote the foregoing amalgamated ticket, which contains all of the so-called 'Brown' ticket in capital letters, and the remainder elected from the 'Smith' ticket in small type.

"Every voter can vote for twenty (or less) members from the county at large, and for two members only from his own ward, or one member only from his own country precinct.

"As it is evidently the purpose of the present committee to endeavor to perpetuate themselves in office by mingling the names of all the candidates in an unintelligible mass, we suggest that every voter cut out the above ticket, to be used as a guide in making out his ticket when he enters the booth, as the present committee will not permit the voters to prepare their ballots in advance.

WATSON URGES HIS FRIENDS NOT TO VOTE FOR HOKE SMITH

attention to the date at which they were written, and without telling the people what has occurred since these words of praise were published. They do not explain to the people that after the legislature had adjourned, and after I had written these articles Governor Smith suddenly felt immensely tempted to run for the senate. They do not explain to the people how he sounded me and other supporters upon that subject. They do not explain to the people that I declined to pledge myself to support him for senator. I thought that the governor would be doing a great wrong to his supporters if he made use of the governorship during his first term as a stepping stone to the senate, when so much of the work that he had promised to do had not been done. It is quite likely that this attitude of mine toward his pet ambition had much to do with my loss of influence with his excellency, the governor.

"These who now use what I said in favor of the governor just summer do not explain to the people that on November 17, 1907, he went to McRae, Ga., and made a speech exonerating the legislature from all blame for having defeated his pet measures, when in a previous speech delivered at Warrenton he had roundly denounced these members of the legislature who had betrayed the people, and promised that he would go into their counties and denounce them to their constituents.

"ONE-MAN CONVENTION" RULE
"REVOLUTIONARY" SAYS WATSON
Neither is it explained to the people that the governor reversed himself on the question of the early primary, and that the new rules adopted by his committee propose a revolution in our political system, which I could not dream last summer was contemplated by him. Never before, so far as I know, has it been suggested that the successful candidate in a race for governor shall be given the right to appoint the delegates from the counties which he does not carry, as well as from the counties which he does carry. According to that new rule 'little Joe Brown might carry fifty or sixty counties in this campaign, and if Hoke Smith, by reason of large majorities obtained in the big cities or elsewhere, secured a majority of the whole vote of the state he would not only appoint representatives from the counties where his voters were in the majority, but would appoint them for these fifty or sixty counties in which his voters were in the minority. Thus we have a self-contradictory rule, by which the majority in the vote of the whole state becomes so supreme that it annuls the majority obtained in many of the counties. If this is not the deadliest stab at representative government that we have had since the days of the carpetbagger and the federal bayonet, I understand nothing about home rule and the principles of true democracy.

"Because I have pointed out the shortcomings of Governor Smith, and explained why it was impossible for me to support him as I did two years ago his batteries are now trained upon me. In private conversations throughout the state he has attacked me viciously and continuously. He has misrepresented me in the most outrageous manner, and done it in such a way as makes reply by me difficult and ineffective.

"HE HAS STABBED ME IN THE BACK."

SAYS WATSON OF HOKE SMITH
"He has not struck me in the open, as a brave opponent would do, but he has stabbed me in the back. Not only has he done this himself, but he has set his campaign managers to doing the same thing throughout the length and breadth of Georgia. Instead of contenting himself with denying, explaining or refuting the statements made by me against his public record, he has assailed me as though I were his opponent in the race for governor."

FREE SHORTHAND COURSE

In order that everybody may have an opportunity to investigate for themselves the wonderful possibilities of Chartier Shorthand, Bagwell Business College will give a week's course, Absolutely Free, to all who may apply.

The Day Class will be formed Monday morning, 9 o'clock, June 8. Evening Class, Monday evening, 7:30 o'clock, June 8.

AFTER ONE WEEK'S INSTRUCTION

The average student should master every principle of the system and be able to write ordinary business letters at a moderate speed.

Chartier Shorthand is rapidly supplanting the old-line systems. Over three hundred leading business colleges of the United States have adopted it, including the great Eastman School of Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

The Chartier System contains only 10 simple rules and the alphabet. That's all.

FREE SCHOLARSHIP OFFERED AS PRIZE

A free $45.00 Scholarship will be offered as a prize to the student who can write and read shorthand the most rapidly and accurately at the end of the week's free course. Here is an opportunity for some one to secure a business education free.

The College secures positions for all of its graduates. Over 300 positions were offered our pupils during the past nine months.

Names will be enrolled in order of their application. A large number have already been sent in. Call, write or telephone.

"His campaign managers have strown the state with venomous and slanderous attacks upon me personally. The latest of these to come to my notice is a pamphlet of sixteen pages, which must have cost a considerable sum of money, and this is being scattered by the tens of thousands. This pamphlet purports to have been written by one Louis M. Foster, who teaches school, as I understand it, somewhere in the neighborhood of Gainesville, Ga. This man could hardly have had the surplus money or the motive to get out an expensive campaign document of this sort, and, therefore, he must have had financial aid.

"Whose interest was it to aid Foster in circulating tens of thousands of a 16-page pamphlet against me? Who else would have financed this campaign document of vituperation and obscenity, foul abuse and libelous charges if not the Hoke Smith managers?

STATE STREWN WITH PAMPHLETS
ATTACKING WATSON AND BOOKS
"This pamphlet is so full of scurrilous and malicious abuse that I can only quote a few lines of it. My friend, Rev. S. A. Walker, the old war horse of populism, will be given a copy of it to exhibit to those who find it difficult to believe that Hoke Smith's managers could deal me such a foul blow. Only within the last few weeks has this precious publication appeared, the purpose being that I should have little or no opportunity to defend myself from it.

"After saying, in effect, that I possess every despicable trait that it would be possible for the devil himself to compress within one human hide, this Hoke Smith scribbler says that my books are 'unclean,' 'immoral,' 'unwholesome and grossly misleading.' He admonishes fathers and mothers not to allow their children to read these books of mine. He compares the atmosphere of my books and my editorials to the aroma of the polecat and of rotten eggs. It is a great variety of similes he compares me to the buzzard. He declares that 'The Jeffersonian magazine and The Jeffersonian paper, together with such other newspapers and magazines as reproduce articles written by me, ought to be fed by the old buzzards to the young buzzards in order that the parent birds may feast to their full and feed their progeny until they are utterly surfeited on this dainty and delicious food.'

AS A 'CRAFTY POLITICIAN'
WATSON DESCRIBES GOVERNOR

"He further says that if these young buzzards should be fed on my writings, he 'shall expect these unfledged gormandizers to fatten and flourish as baby buzzards were never known to do before.' On page 15 of the pamphlet this Hoke Smith writer calls me 'A dirty and contemptible demagogue.' On page 16 he varies the accusation by describing me as 'an artful and unscrupulous demagogue.' Not quite satisfied with this master, Hoke Smith, will be pleased with this comparatively modest estimate, he goes on further on the same page to call me 'a corrupt, cowardly and conscienceless demagogue.'

"To a man who has stood in political isolation as long as I have done, rather than curry favor and obtain office by a surrender of principles which are dear to me as life, it seems singular. I should be thus denounced by a servile tool of a crafty politician, who was fattening himself on official spoils as a member of Grover Cleveland's second cabinet, at a time when I was doing everything in my power to educate the people of Georgia in these principles to which Hoke Smith owes the position that he now holds.

"We old populists in the days gone by sowed the seed in sorrow and tribulation. It has remained for such men as Hoke Smith to reap the harvest, and I think they could well afford to refrain from abusing these pioneers of the people's party movement who sacrificed so much for the cause, and who yielded the rewards so generously when the time came that these sacred principles commended themselves to the majority of the voters of the state of Georgia.

WATSON CALLS ON FRIENDS

NOT TO VOTE FOR HOKE SMITH
"Believing that it is the purpose of Governor Smith and his committee to establish a ring rule in its worst form, and to make permanent a system which destroys the constitutional rights of the country counties, and violates the democratic principle that every county shall be represented according to the majority vote of that county, instead of the majority vote of some other county, I have no hesitation whatever in asking my friends not to vote for Hoke Smith in this campaign. To support him now, when these new rules are involved in the campaign, will be taken as an endorsement of those rules. Their defeat is more essential to the future welfare of this state than the success of either one of the candidates."

$3,399.52 GAIN
AT POSTOFFICE

The receipts of the Atlanta postoffice for the month of May were, according to the report given out by Postmaster Blodgett yesterday, $71,474.89. For the month of May, 1907, the receipts were $68,075.37. A comparison shows that May, 1908, exceeded May, 1907, by $3,399.52.

Up to July 1, 1907, one-half of the fourth class postoffices in Georgia deposited their surplus postal funds with the Atlanta postmaster, the other half going to Savannah. Since that date all the postoffices in the state also have been depositing in Atlanta. A recent order from the postoffice department directs that from July 1, next, all presidential postoffices in the state shall deposit with the Atlanta postoffice. This order makes Atlanta the depository for the entire state of Georgia.

As she gave the alarm another miscreant sprang into view, and the two fled together in the direction of "Pond de Leon avenue." A $25 watch was the result of the haul.

Next Saturday (6 JUNE)

And every Saturday until September we will close at 1 O'Clock

And won't you kindly, ladies and gentlemen, do your shopping in the morning—or the day before? You don't know how much we'll appreciate it if you will, because we don't want to disappoint anybody, and we should hate dreadfully to have you come down to the store and find the Half-Holiday sign fluttering in the breeze.

We want these summer half-holidays to mean to our people rest and pleasure, freedom to get out in the open and take in great tonic draughts of sunshine and pure air.

We have a theory that the happiness of living consists in passing on the pleasures that come; in giving the other fellow an opportunity to smile with us at what makes us laugh; in letting him peep through the glasses that make things clear and rosy to us; in dividing up our goodies with him.

Faith, there's enough for us all.

And we are not wholly sentimental about it. Our theory has a good, sound philosophy for a basis; and, at the last, maybe there's a bit of selfishness (though we hope not of the sordid kind) in our position. We get better service from our boys and girls, our men and women, for the little bit of change and fresh air. And in proportion as we get better service, so do you, the customer, the public, get it at our counters.

Don't forget, then, that next Saturday we all take to the woods at one o'clock.

This Is Important to Telephone Users...

During the month of June, we will make a change in our telephone system in Atlanta—a change which will benefit our subscribers by reason of producing more efficient service, and will benefit us by enabling us to handle a rapidly growing business with greater facility.

This change will make it necessary to transfer many telephones from the Main Exchange to the Ivy Exchange, thus diverting a portion of the business from the Main Exchange through the Ivy Exchange, and will make it necessary to assign new numbers to many telephones.

We have planned this work so that there will be a minimum of confusion and delay. Changes in numbers will be made only where such a change is absolutely necessary, and due notice will be given each subscriber whose number will have to be changed.

If your number is among those changed, we trust you will understand that it is not an arbitrary act on our part, but a step that is absolutely necessary—made so by the growth of Atlanta.

We ask your patient cooperation and help. In the end it means a bigger and better telephone system—a bigger and greater Atlanta. The latter is what we are all working for.

If you have not already visited our new "Ivy" office, do so. It is one of the most modern telephone buildings in the world. We'll understand each other lots better if you will accept this invitation.

SUPPORTER OF MANGUM ANSWERS NELMS' CHARGES

A paid advertisement entitled Truth vs. Falsehood, signed John W. Neims, appeared in The Journal of yesterday. The first alleged falsehood was that "C. W. Smith stated at Guinn's school that the sheriff and his deputies had grown too old to transact the business of the office." William M. Smith and not C. W. Smith, made practically that statement. Mr. Sheriff, at least, keep names and men straight. The "falsehood" made at Guinn's is reiterated. You, and most of your men, are too old to be of any service in times of need, and are too old to efficiently discharge the duties of the office. Here are the facts: Neims, 70; Thomas, 71; Shropshire, 62; Goldsmith, 68; Tye, 59; Fain, 59; Jones, 60; Perkins, 54; Tolbert, 59; Chase, 53. Not one under 50. I phoned out to one of your deputies home to find out how old he was. It was daytime. He was asleep, fatigued by his duties of the day. The average age of your flock, with the exception of the new men whom we have forced you to put on, is 64½ years. Now, who lied? Sheriff Neims or Smith? Why didn't you give facts? It is easy to charge a man with lying, but what about it when facts are given?

Smith is charged with lying when he said Neims "knew nothing about the management of the office." That "lie" I repeat. My authority, Mr. Neims, are men who compose your own ticket as deputies. If you will give me a written agreement, signed by you and your deputies, I will name, in public print, the name of your deputies from whom no information was obtained, and the time and the place it was obtained. They are only informing you from political necessity. They never expect to run with you again as their head. They tried to keep you from running this time, and told you they were afraid you could not be elected. They could not convince you, and you threatened to get up a third party, and they were afraid that you would divide support and Mangum would beat both tickets. Your deputies are the strength of your ticket. You are its weakness.

"Smith's effort to make the people believe Mangum had anything to do with the revenue of the management of the cash of the road is false." I didn't make any such effort. I don't suppose the president of the road actually handles the cash; he has some young man to do it. If I am correctly informed, you don't handle the cash in the sheriff's office, either. It is my opinion that you are allowed to do as little down there as possible, you being a hindrance rather than a help.

at least, so I am advised.

"His charges that I even thought of exciting a riot are false." No, I didn't accuse you of thinking. I was no more than simply saying that you didn't think, and you didn't. When this county really needed a thinking sheriff. Bless your old soul, I don't believe you knew really what you were doing. Mayor Woodward, Captain English and General O'Beir thought for you. They called you out of the limelight. Now, you ask where were these would-be deputies during the last riot? You picked out some of them, Stanley and Dunnagan among them, as representative citizens in their district, and made them deputy sheriffs. You ask for facts, doctor.

You ask where the mud-slingers were. The writer had on the uniform of a soldier and officer of this state, and was on duty doing far more to establish law and order than you, Mr. Sheriff, and helping to correct your mistakes and being ready at any moment to check the riot to cause. You refer to Mr. Chambers and myself, and ask where we were in the Pittsburg riot. We were there at Pittsburg, first as citizens, and saw that you knew nothing about organizing your men or intelligently looking after such a situation. We saw that you were afraid to face the angry men who drew the negro's body from the flames and marched toward the city with it, these men only being checked by a cordon of police when they reached the city limits, these police headed by a police commissioner of the city of Atlanta, whom, I think, I don't think you recall to where the trouble occurred. Dear Doctor, black letter type don't make a sheriff. Yes, Mr. Chambers and myself put on our uniforms as militiamen and stayed out there until we restored law and order, and you were unable to restore, and you had to call on us to help you. Mr. Chambers and I and our comrades completing the job, while possibly you were comfortably asleep in your palatial home in West End guarded securely by the city police.

For twelve years and more the writer has been in the active service of the state. He has been trained by West Point officers in the service. He knows a good executive officer when he sees one. He knows an incompetent one. The writer is a lawyer of seven years' experience. He knows a good sheriff when he sees one. The writer thinks the competence of this county is a new sheriff. Very truly,
W. M. SMITH.

TORCHLIGHT PARADE FOR BROWN TONIGHT

All is announced in readiness for the torchlight procession of the Fulton County Joe Brown Club, which will take place through the streets of the city tonight.

The start will be made from the Henry Grady monument promptly at 7:30 o'clock, and after a tour of the city will return to the monument, where an open-air rally will wind up the campaigning in this county.

The full details have been completed and announced by Secretary Braselton, of the Fulton County Joe Brown Club. Major General A. J. West, commander of the Georgia division of the United Confederate Veterans, with Secretary Amos Braselton, of the Joe Brown Club, will be the grand marshals of the parade.

They will be mounted, and will head the procession in which there will be 5,000 torches. At the head of the procession there will be Newsome's rallyho, drawn by six brown horses, and in which there will be seated Wedemeyers (union band). Behind the band will extend ten or more blocks of Brown men, each bearing a torchlight.

Five Thousand Torches Arrive. There arrived in the city during the day the 5,000 torches ordered by this club for use in the parade. They have been stored in a vacant store on Forsyth street, near the corner of Marietta and Forsyth, and within 50 feet of the Grady monument.

After being given torches the march-

Big Shipment of Cash Registers. Special to The Constitution. Dayton, Ohio, June 2.—In the month of May the National Cash Register Company shipped more cash registers than in any other month of the history of the company. This was due to the reduced prices brought about by improved machinery and new methods of advertising, and several introduced by the president and general manager of the company, Mr. John H. Patterson.

He Disclosed German Secrets.

Leipzig, June 2.—The imperial court sentenced Herr Schwara, a well-known author, to twelve years in jail and the loss of his civil rights, after having found him guilty of disclosing German military secrets to France and thus endangering the defenses of the empire. This case aroused considerable local sensation owing to the fact that a large number of German non-commissioned officers were suspected of complicity.

There is only one effective way to Stop Indigestion

Most digesters rely on pepsin. But pepsin digests albumen only. It is but one of the elements needed.

Starch, fats and phosphates each require something else.

Then half of digestion is done in the bowels, and pepsin can't do that.

It requires many ingredients to form a perfect digester, and they must be in liquid form.

Kodol has all those ingredients. It does all that the stomach does—all that the bowels do. It digests any food—any mixture of foods—completely.

Partial digesters give only half-way help.

There is always some food left to get hard, and irritate the stomach lining.

That irritation, even though slight, continues the inflammation. That is why the stomach fails to regain its strength.

A weak stomach is like a lame ankle. Use or abuse it and it will never get well.

But give it complete rest—do all its work for it—and Nature very quickly restores its normal powers.

You can't do this by dieting, for there is always some food that doesn't digest.

You can't do it with partial digesters.

You can't do it with tonics, for they spur the stomach to but temporary activity.

It must be done with Kodol.

The results then are instant and complete. Every food that your cat is digested. You get your full nourishment, yet the stomach gets absolute rest.

Our Guarantee

On the first dollar bottle of Kodol your druggist gives a signed guarantee. If it fails to do all we claim, your druggist returns your money. You take no risk whatever. This $1.00 bottle contains 2½ times as much as the 50c bottle. Made by E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

This is the eve of the great battle of ballots. When tomorrow's sun rises the battle will be on in earnest.

At 7 o'clock in the city the polls will open and at 7 o'clock in the evening they will close. With one exception the polls in the country will open at 8 o'clock and close at 3 o'clock. That one exception is the Cook's precinct, and this has been placed in the same category with the city polls because of the large number of voters registered in that district. In the second, third, fifth and sixth wards there will be two ballot boxes and two sets of managers and clerks, and in the Cook's precinct, and in those wards the registration has been larger than ever before, and it is so large that the executive committee has deemed it advisable to double up in order that all the voters can have a chance to cast their ballots.

The official list of names of all the voters in this year is very long, containing all the names of all the state and county officers, along with the candidates for congress, state senator and representative.

The counting of the ballots will begin as soon as the polls close. The vote for governor will be first counted and the result will be known in the city by 8 o'clock.

Early Count in Country.

As the country polls close at 3 o'clock the vote for governor will be known in all the precincts outside the city by 6 o'clock.

On account of the length of the ballot and the many votes to be counted it may be that some of the city precincts will not finish the full count until late in the night or perhaps early the next morning.

The chief of police has made arrangements to have officers stationed at all the city polls, and the county chief has taken the same precaution in regard to the precincts in the country.

While there is much feeling in regard to many of the races, no trouble of any kind is apprehended, and it is believed that the election will be conducted quietly.

The subcommittee of the county executive committee has given instructions to the managers to allow the newspaper representatives full opportunity to obtain the results of the counts as fast as each is made.

Managers of county precincts have been requested to meet at the courthouse this afternoon. City managers will meet at 7:30 in the evening.

BRYAN BACKED BY ARKANSAS

Little Rock, Ark., June 2.—The democratic state convention, which convened here at noon today, at today's sessions elected delegates to the national convention, adopted a resolution binding the delegates to the support of William Jennings Bryan as the party's presidential nominee, besides disposing of matters of a routine character.

Tomorrow the result of the primaries for state officers will be ratified, a platform adopted, and a national committeeman elected. At the opening session a resolution eulogistic of the late former United States Senator James K. Jones was adopted by a rising vote.

The delegates at large to the national convention followed:

United States Senator James P. Clarke; George W. Donaghey, democratic nominee for governor; O. C. Ludwig, secretary of state, and James H. Harbo, a Little Rock attorney.

Senator Jeff Davis was one of the nominees for delegate-at-large, but received only 183 votes out of a total of 995.

The delegates selected compose the so-called administration slate.

The subcommittee of the state central committee appointed to investigate the contest between W. S. Goodwin and R. Minor Wallace for the nomination for congress in the seventh district reported in favor of the latter.

up to me, extending his hand, saying: "Allow me to congratulate you upon your magnificent appointment as railroad commissioner."

"He is a modest, honest, noble Christian gentleman, a discharged soldier, without criticism for eighteen months. The first criticism came when he failed to do something a candidate for governor wanted him to do. He may be little, but he is as honest as God ever made man. He may be little, but he is as true as any Georgian in the state."

"He may not have a voice that can be heard over six militia districts, but when he is in the governor's chair, as he is sure to be, and may have opposition two years from now, no candidate will be able to force him to leave it in charge of a negro porter."

"When he is governor he will not be a czar to try and control your convention and go to the national convention with Georgia's twenty-six votes in his vest pocket to trade off for some high-salaried cabinet position, but with judgment, judgment, judgment, will guide our ship of state and make us as proud of him as ever Georgia was of old Joseph E. Brown."

"He is afraid of only one thing—not to do his duty."

"He is charged with not being a speaker. Thomas Jefferson was not a speaker, and yet he wrote the Declaration of Independence, which was adopted on the Fourth of July, and Joe Brown wrote his announcement card for governor, which will be Georgia's declaration of independence to be adopted on the fourth of June."

Governor Terrell concluded, the band struck up "Dixie," and the house rose almost on a dime. It was a great ovation.

Standing Room at Premium.

When the hour arrived for the rally practically every seat in the house was occupied and standing room was at a premium. Before the first speaker, Hon. Madison Bell, had concluded, the house was packed and word came to the stage there were as many people on the outside trying to hear as were in the house. This created the "overflowing" at which Harry Alexander spoke.

Attorney Bell was at his best and kept the vast audience at attention throughout his address. In graphic words he pictured the governor's announcement, referring to the "Dixie" which was "responded to" from the gallery by cries of "Holy Hoke."

"Holy Hoke," creating quite a laugh. He drew a picture of the prosperity, then, and it was in this picture he referred to Governor Terrell.

In this picture he drew another of "present conditions," with factories shut down, running on reduced time and lower wages. He asked, "Who caused this?" The answer came back from the audience like a swarm of automobiles: "Hoke."

"Hoke." "Who promised to lower freight rates?" Answer: "Hoke."

"Hoke." "Who promised to bring the cost of living down?" Answer: "Hoke."

"Hoke." "Who promised to give us our own free born?" "Hoke, Hoke," and so the questions and answers ran. It was possibly the most enthusiastic Joe Brown rally which has yet been held.

Mr. Bell concluded amidst great applause.

Audience of "Durn Fools."

Hon. Roland Ellis, of Bibb, former representative from that county, followed. He began with the statement: "I congratulate Fulton county upon this magnificent audience of 'Durn Fools,' which really provoked a hearty laugh. He declared he knew something of state politics and intended to expose them. 'I come with a message, too. It is from south and middle Georgia, inviting you to attend the inauguration next year of Joseph M. Brown as governor.' He read a telegram from Muscogee county stating that county was going for Brown."

"What I can't understand," he said, "is how a man in Fulton county and citizen of this city can beamirch local capital and attack your street car corporation. Macon tells me we should have a system like Atlanta, and I read in the paper where Atlanta's system is attacked by the governor and the man who has done so much to help Georgia."

He attacked the record of the governor on the prohibition question, called attention to the "line-up" and took up the disfranchisement question. He said he was one of three men who voted for the original disfranchisement bill as introduced by Mr. Hardwick, and was ridiculed by Mr. Smith in The Journal for doing so. He said the governor took credit from capital coming to Macon since he had been governor, and replied: "I am a stockholder in that corporation and I tell you that capital was brought to Georgia in spite of Governor Smith." He declared that the Georgia laws were more antagonistic to foreign capital than either Alabama or North Carolina.

He said that it was now possible to get up a mass meeting of the unemployed anywhere, and paid a high tribute to the Terrell administration. He declared there was nothing in the state constitution which prescribed the puerile qualifications of a candidate and said: "This has come to be a question of potatoes and not pedigree."

He paid a high tribute to Georgia's war governor and to Mr. Brown's ability to govern after election. He concluded with a pen picture of Georgia "when Joe Brown is governor."

The rally was concluded by a speech from Henry Alexander, who is offering for the legislature from this county as opposed to the policies of Governor Smith and supporting those of Mr.

and Atlantic railroad. He was speaking along the usual lines when he took up the strike.

He said he was sorry for boys to have to strike, but he would stand by them if Milton H. Smith tried to crowd them out of jobs.

"They want you, boys, to work any hours and then expect you to beg for a crust of bread."

The next feature of the address was his reference to the card from union labor men, which appeared yesterday in The Constitution. Of this he said:

"I saw that card before it was ever printed. I do not believe the men who signed it ever wrote it, and they signed it without ever seeing it. I tell you what I will do. I will give $25,000 if they prove what was stated in that card if they will give $25,000 if they fail to prove it. We will let the money go to the union labor clubs."

Vote for Me, Says Smith.

Then the governor made the statement:

"I believe that more than half of the men who signed that card will go to the polls when they are free, and the shackles are thrown off and vote for me."

Just as the governor began to speak a bench on the stage toppled over, and this caused such a noise that he had to wait awhile.

The oration was filled, and it was decided to hold an overflow meeting. A crowd gathered about the door, and several speakers tried to address them. It seemed that there were more Brown men out there than Smith men, and the speakers could not be heard.

Colonel W. S. Thomson called the meeting to order and the governor was introduced amidst loud cheering.

He began by saying that he brought glad tidings from all over the state and that the people would march to a glorious victory on June 4.

He said he had been fought by partisan newspapers that would not discuss the real issues. Just then the band on the stage fell and somebody yelled out: "Hoke Smith did that."

This provoked applause and laughter. He spoke of foreign capital and said he was not opposed to it.

"For the next three years," he exclaimed, "God sparing my life, I will do all I can to bring capital into the state. I shall use my broad acquaintance in the nation to help do this."

Brown and Bread.

He said something about "Brown and bread," which caused much laughter. And then he said that a south Georgia girl, noted for her beauty and wit, had written:

"Hoke and Ham, Hoe cake and Hominy."

He said the Brown crowd had tried to fool the farmer about the price of cotton.

He denied that he had ever criticized Joe Brown's personal appearance and said he had only criticized his business qualifications.

"This is not an effort to elect Brown," he said, "but a bitter and vicious fight against me."

"My only aspiration in life," he said, "has been to be senator, and I would enjoy this intellectually. I am proud of what the opposition has done. It has been a tribute to my record. Haven't I filled my promises?"

"Yes, yes," yelled a dozen voices. "The rest of the governor's address was about prohibition, pensions and old soldiers. He said God knew he ought to love the old boys, as his one ambition when he was a boy was for the war not to end until he had a chance to take a hand in it."

He closed by talking of free passes, freight rates and disfranchisement.

Big Crowd on Streets.

The governor finished speaking at 9:40 o'clock. After giving a hearty yell the crowd dispersed. Most of those present marched up Marietta street toward the center of the city. The Brown supporters, who had attended the overflow meeting at the Bijou, formed a lane in the middle of the street through which the Smith crowd passed. Within about half the number had passed, the Brown crowd in the Bijou emptied into the street, and then there was a general mix-up of friendly rivals. It was all good-natured, and only yells were exchanged. A cordon of mounted police was on hand, and until he was prepared to keep the crowd moving, but their services were not necessary.

YOUNG COLLECTOR SHORT,
DECLARE HIS PARTNERS

After having left town about ten days ago, in an effort to raise money to cover a shortage amounting to $188, it is alleged Frank Alexander, a young man who gives his home as Adairville, and who, for some time, has been joint representative of a Montgomery, Ala., "near beer" establishment, returned to Atlanta Sunday, and on Monday was placed under arrest at the instance of his copartners, H. H. Dodge and D. H. Carroll.

Alexander stated that he had employed a friend to help him collect on some "near beer" sales, and that the two other friends had likewise taken in money unknown to him, the total amount of $188 being largely discounted in the collections. Alexander refused to give the names of his friends, stating that he would settle the affair himself and out of the courts.

Card From Treasurer R. E. Park

To the People of Georgia:

Mr. W. J. Speer in attacking my record as State Treasurer, says: "I NEVER made deposits of over $100,000 in any of my banks, but kept a watchful eye upon such matters."

Again Mr. Speer says: "No depositor EVER lost a dollar while I was Treasurer."

Mr. Speer further says: "I ALWAYS knew from personal examination the actual condition of each depository, and kept the State's balances with each within the limit fixed by law."

In reply to these assertions, please read the following affidavit: Personally appeared before me, W. H. Harrison, N. P. J. O. Anderson, who, upon oath testifies and says that the daily balance books of the bookkeeper of the State Bank Bureau of Georgia, show that W. J. Speer, when Treasurer of Georgia, did have on deposit in the Neal Bank, January 2, 1900, $257,364.83; on January 6, 1900, $269,705.18, and seventeen days later, January 23, 1900, had in the same bank, $205,487.74. Mr. Speer's books further show that on December 8, 1899, he had $111,547.52 on deposit with the Neal Bank, and that the amount was over $100,000 from December 8, 1899, to February 1, 1900, when there was $110,092.73.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this June 2, 1908, at Atlanta, Ga.

J. O. ANDERSON,
Bookkeeper State Treasury Dept.

W. H. HARRISON,
Notary Public, Fulton Co., Ga.

The above proof convicts Mr. Speer of lack of memory or deliberate falsehood. This man, without a memory or without a conscience (?), forgets or ignores the following notorious failures of banks while under his Argus eyes as watch-dog of the Treasury, in all of which, depositors suffered heavy losses, viz.: (The State Savings Bank and the Union Trust Company of Atlanta, whose president, W. C. Hale, fled the state; the Merchants Bank of Atlanta, the Home Bank of the same city; a noted bank at Athens, where the cashier fled from justice, and the well-known bank at Brunswick, where the president suicided. Two State Depositories at Brunswick and at Rome failed under his "watchful" eyes, and lawsuits expensive to the State ensued. I have besides painful recollections of inheriting the troubles of two of his "rotten" banks. Here are six failures with heavy losses to depositors during the four years of this truthful William of boasted "businesslike" methods watched over his maximum of 140 State Banks. During my incumbency of eight years, with a total of 465 banks, there have been only five failures, and this at a time of the greatest financial panic since 1873. The State has never lost a dollar during my administration. No State in the Union has a better record.

REPLY TO QUESTIONS.

1. Mr. Speer asks, "Did you not know at the time you made this deposit that the Neal Bank was in a dying condition, and could not possibly live more than twenty-four hours?"

I answer, No, and that the frenzied "run" caused its failure. It has paid the State in full, and I believe, and the Receiver, Mr. Asa G. Candler, has stated, will pay all of its depositors also, and such a suggestion could come only from a diseased or corrupt mind.

2. He inquires whether I will ask for an appropriation to meet any legal expenses, and I reply, I have not thought of such a thing. The Attorney General has directed all litigation and at no expense to the State, and has guided my course in the matter.

3. Mr. S. says that some "able" lawyers believe the State will be called upon to refund moneys paid by the Receiver to me. This is absurd, and not worth attention.

4. Mr. S. continues to repeat that the banks are "assessed to pay for Examiners." There was no such law prior to September 1, 1907, and the legislature does not assess enough upon the banks to pay able Examiners sufficiently, nor to employ enough of them.

5. The court's decision in favor of the State has fully answered all the other constantly repeated questions, and I refer to that, and this seems to have satisfied all parties except the very few litigants in this case, who I am told you have induced to get up a circular of complaint against me, repeating the old charges, exploded and discarded by the court.

All know that personal politics is behind your brutal attack, and all fair and just Georgians endorse my care of the State Treasury and my efforts to foster and preserve our State Banks. This ambitious fellow is to be pitied for his inability to understand this legal matter, though I have more than once tried to get it into his befuddled brain. I am surely not to blame for his mental and physical misfortune.

Is it a lack of memory or mendacity—which?

Very faithfully yours,
ROBERT E. PARK.

LILLEY STICKS TO HIS CHARGES

Congressman Denounced by His Fellows Makes Statement

MOTIVES NOT IMPROPER

Lilley Says That He Believes Excessive Profits Have Been Made by Electric Boat Company—Alleges Committee Offered to Compromise.

Waterbury, Conn., June 2.—Congressman George L. Lilley, whose resolution and charges in connection with the so-called submarine boat scandal resulted last week in a severe scolding of the congressman by the Boutell investigating committee, today gave out a statement on the subject.

Incorporated in the statement is a letter which declares that two weeks before the report of the committee denouncing Mr. Lilley was made, Mr. Boutell expressed admiration for Lilley and endeavored to effect an agreement whereby the matter under investigation by the committee might be compromised. The letter in which this allegation is made is signed "E. W. Reisinger, M. D." and was addressed to Mrs. Lilley after the doctor had called upon Mr. Boutell to explain that Congressman Lilley's physical condition necessitated his leaving the city. The letter adds that when the proposition of a compromise was carried to Mr. Lilley by Dr. E. W. Reisinger, the congressman replied that he would rather die than withdraw the charges which he knew were honest and square.

No Charge Against Members.

In concluding his statement, Congressman Lilley says:

A suggestion that a member of the house has been annoyed by importunities of the Electric Boat Company cannot rightfully be construed as a charge against the member. A request that the committee ascertain by impartial investigation whether improper practices on the part of the Electric Boat Company had influenced congressional action is not, in my judgment, a charge against members of the house. I believed, and still believe, that the Electric Boat Company has received excessive profit in the sale of submarine boats to the United States government. That belief has been strengthened by the testimony given before the committee by a responsible person that he would take a contract for the construction of submarines at the price which I mentioned as giving liberal profit to the contractor. Whether the conclusion of the committee in this particular were justified or not I leave the public to judge. Conscious of the honesty of my motives and having information of the facts mentioned in the letter incorporated in this paper, and having learned from my counsel that a member of the committee had said him in the presence of other members and without any dissent on their part, that the committee had no doubt of my sincerity and knowledge that the statements to my physician and my counsel were made near the close of the hearing and after I had concluded my testimony, my feeling, or rather my condition on learning the committee's conclusion was stupefaction.

I present this statement of my position without any elaboration of details with the exception of an expression of my gratitude to the public that has so generously accorded me its confidence, a confidence which I hope I have deserved and shall never forfeit.

Mr. Lilley declares in his statement that he has not now and never did have any interest in any company constructing or selling submarine torpedo boats, that he has not and never has had any affiliation with persons interested in the construction or sale of submarine torpedo boats.

Lilley's Motive.

"I testified before the committee and I reiterate here," the statement continues, "that my motive in introducing my resolution calling for an investigation was the public welfare and that I did not act in concert with any other person. It is true that the immediate moving cause of my act was my conviction that the appropriation bill, as framed in the naval committee, would so restrict the powers of the secretary of the navy that he would be compelled to purchase submarine boats of the Electric Boat Company to the destruction of competition and to the disadvantage of the government. My belief that the methods employed by the Electric Boat Company warranted investigation was of long standing.

Against the presumption of honesty and my own direct testimony and that of the representatives of the Lake Torpedo Boat Company there was no direct evidence. In the minds of the committee, however, all these were outweighed by certain circumstances which the committee incorporated on a chronological thread. They are, I believe, insignificant individually and in the aggregate. I believe and I still believe that the thing of consequence to the committee was the faulty judgment. I would say, however, that I have been informed by my counsel that if he had been permitted to examine witnesses in the ordinary way, he would have gone directly to representatives of the Lake Torpedo Boat Company as an obvious source of information and have asked them to put him upon additional lines of inquiry; that if he had failed to do so he would have been negligent in the discharge of his duty. I do not understand how I can be justly criticised for doing what my counsel has advised me he would have been properly censured for not doing if he had omitted to do it."

LOOKING INTO THESE CHARGES

Prison Commission Investigating Statements of an Ex-Convict

Prison Commissioner Thomas Eason is now at the state prison farm investigating the charges of cruelty preferred against the prison officials in charge of the farm by Will Rowland, a former convict.

Rowland charges that prisoners at the farm have often been beaten to a state of exhaustion, have been compelled to work when ill, given poor and meager food and sometimes placed in coffins to frighten them into submission. A number of letters have been received at the office of the prison commission from Milledgeville tending to exonerate Superintendent Combs and the forces under him from the charges which the negro makes. Captain Combs and his associates strongly deny the charges and have submitted affidavits charging that they are false. Evidence has also been submitted to show that the prisoners at the farm receive the most humane treatment. The prison commission will make a full and careful inquiry into the affair.

IMMIGRATION AGENTS HERE TO STUDY GEORGIA

Government Officials Come to Learn Just What People Think of the Question.

George H. Bell, J. T. Kellert and John P. Bradford, special agents of the United States immigration commission, arrived in Atlanta yesterday from Washington, and will make a special study of conditions in Georgia with reference to immigration. "We have no axe to grind," said Mr. Bell, "to a representative of the Constitution, and are not here to preach for or against immigration. We have been sent to learn what the people of Georgia think about immigration, what sections of the state, if any, desire immigrants, and what class of immigrants they desire if they desire any at all. We have heard that immigration has become quite an issue in Georgia politics, but we are not concerned with the political side of the question. In short we have come to Georgia in search of information and not in the interest of any propaganda."

PHILIP FOUND NOT GUILTY.

Clubman Tried on Charge of Murdering a Cabman.

Washington, June 2.—Gaston P. Philip, civil engineer and clubman of New York and Washington, was acquitted of the murder of Frank Macaboy, a cab driver, by a jury in criminal court, No. 2, here tonight. The jury was out an hour and twelve minutes.

Philip was tried on the charge of having shot and killed Macaboy at the Arlington hotel in this city on the morning of May 18, 1907. The tragedy was the culmination of a night of revelry preceding the shooting. Macaboy, it is said, claimed that Philip owed him $150 gambling debt and importuned Philip to throw dice with him in order to "win the money back," as he put it. Finally the two men went to the Arlington. There Macaboy attacked Philip, it is said, and the latter, fearing serious bodily harm, fired the shot that killed Macaboy.

She had beaten by seven minutes the best previous time over the long course made by her sister ship, the Lusitania, and also had made the best single day's run ever made by any steamship. She passed Daunt's Rock at 4:35 a. m. on May 28, at record speed, and maintained the pace throughout the voyage. The fastest time of the voyage was made in the last day's run, when she reeled off 635 nautical miles in 24 hours, a new record.

AUTOMOBILE LAMP EXPLODED

And Senator McKelthan May Lose Eyesight as Result.

Columbia, S. C., June 2.—(Special.)—Senator D. T. McKelthan, of Darlington, was quite seriously injured by the explosion of a lamp on his automobile last evening. Mr. McKelthan had gone to Florence to attend the play "Mikado," and was lighting the lamp on his machine preparatory to making the trip home.

At this time it is uncertain as to the extent of his injuries, but it is feared he will lose one eye. If not both. His injuries are confined to the face.

It is the universal opinion that all duties, although sometimes unpleasant to perform, and though the call is made for one in haste, whether at night or day, rain or sunshine, Doctor Nelms, our Sheriff, is always ready to serve the public.

IS AN EXPERT ACCOUNTANT

Fine References Given by Joseph Thompson, Candidate for Treasurer.

The many friends of Joseph Thompson, who is in the race for the office of treasurer of Fulton county, are urging him for the important position not alone because they believe he is a man worthy in every way to fill the office, but also because he is an expert accountant and bookkeeper, requisites which a man in a treasurer's office should possess.

They say that there is no better accountant in the state, and they point to his record in that respect, and say that men now holding positions of responsibility and trust received their training under him.

As references they point to George R. DeSaussure, cashier of the Barnett National bank of Jacksonville, Fla.; Henry A. Purcell, head bookkeeper of the Lowry National bank, and John M. DeSaussure, cashier of the Tripod Paint Company, of Atlanta.

All of these well-trained accountants were pupils under Mr. Thompson, and he can give them as references.

Mr. Thompson has made his race for the office of treasurer in a clean, manly manner, asking the people for their support because he desires to serve the public, and because he feels that he was competent to fill the office.

MISSISSIPPI TROOPS TO CAMP IN GEORGIA

Congress Appropriating Railroad Fare, Mississippi Encampment Will Be at Chickamauga.

Jackson, Miss., June 2.—Congress having appropriated railroad fares, it has been determined by Adjutant General Frigate that the Mississippi troops of the national guard of the state will go into encampment at Chickamauga, Ga.

Men of experience and politeness should fill the office positions, as is now done by Sheriff J. W. Nelms. All of his deputies are good, tried and true.

TRIBUTE PAID TO BERNHARDT

C. T. Ladson Writes an Open Letter On His Candidacy.

In an open letter to the voters of Fulton county, C. T. Ladson, attorney for the Georgia Federation of Labor and the Atlanta Federation of Trades, states why every one should vote for C. W. Bernhardt, candidate for the legislature.

Mr. Ladson says in part: "Mr. Bernhardt is a good citizen. He represents the best type of the American workingman. He is a moral man, of strict integrity and fair dealing."

Mr. Ladson reviews Mr. Bernhardt's history in the field of union labor, stating that he has served as president of the Bricklayers' Union and the head of the Atlanta Federation of Trades. He is the workmen's candidate.

"It should be the pleasure of every voter to recognize this claim freely, and on election day deposit a vote for the workmen's candidate," he says. "The way Mr. Ladson put it in his letter. He concludes:

"He does not intend to limit his duties or endeavors as a member of the legislature to that which solely pertains to the working people, but broad-minded man that he is, he will serve the best interests of all the people of his county and state."

LIFE LOST AT A FIRE.

One Woman Killed and Several Others Injured.

New York, June 2.—Fire in Mrs. Mary Mooney's boarding house in West Thirtieth street early today completely cut off the escape of Mrs. Mooney's twenty boarders, and when the firemen arrived a young woman had thrown herself from the roof to the pavement, and was dead, and several others were severely burned.

The dead woman is Miss Marie Beltraine, who occupied a hall room on the top floor.

Mrs. Mary Haggerty, who was burned about the hands, face and body, and overcome by smoke, is in a critical condition.

The fire started in a coal bin in the cellar.

Miss Beltraine, in her night clothing, appeared on the roof and plunged over the coping. One of her feet caught in the half-open shutters, and for an instant the woman's body dangled in space. Then she fell on her head to the street and was killed.

The fire was quickly extinguished, with $1,000 damage.

RIDICULE PROHIBITION BILL.

Souls Have Fun at Expense of Bill to Make New Orleans Dry.

Baton Rouge, La., June 2.—In the lower house of the Louisiana assembly today Representative Drebbels introduced a bill prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquor within ten miles of Tulane university. This would have the effect of placing practically the whole city of New Orleans in the dry column.

This measure, however, although introduced in the regular manner, was not taken seriously by the members of the body, who greeted the introduction of the bill with laughter.

A similar greeting was given a bill introduced by Representative Cooper. This measure declares that a man's kissing either his own wife or any other man's wife on Sunday shall constitute a misdemeanor, and shall be regarded and punished as such.

Becoming more serious, the house greeted in a different manner the announcement from Representative Dousan that a new state-wide prohibition bill would be introduced and would be pushed by the prohibitionists of the state.

MADDOX SPEAKS IN WALKER

Former Congressman Advocates Brown's Election.

Lafayette, Ga., June 2.—(Special.)—Hon. John W. Maddox, of Rome, former congressman from the seventh district, addressed 400 people at the court house Saturday, in the interests of Joseph Brown. It was a mixed audience of farmers, merchants and laborers. Many ladies present.

The Lafayette brass band met the train that brought Mr. Maddox to the city, and the boys yelled themselves hoarse for Brown.

The court house was filled, and many had to stand up.

His speech was able and eloquent, and many converts to Brown. The brass band from Trion, Chattooga county, also came through the country, but reached here too late for the speaking. Later they played for the boys while they yelled for Brown.

Walker county is lining up as it has never done before during this campaign, and the majority of Walker's votes will go to Brown.

No Vote on Gambling Bill.

Baton Rouge, La., June 2.—No vote was taken on the anti-race track gambling bill by the joint judiciary committees of the Louisiana assembly. They sat for an hour at the conclusion of which the calling of the roll of the house forced an adjournment, subject to the call of the chairman.

"VOTE EARLY," SAYS J. R. SMITH

Brown Manager Issues an Address to Brown Supporters.

Disfranchisement of hundreds of voters in Fulton county, and especially in Atlanta, is threatened, on account of the heavy registration, according to a statement issued yesterday afternoon by Campaign Manager J. R. Smith, of the Joe Brown headquarters, in a statement to "The Supporters of the Honorable Joseph M. Brown."

Mr. Smith declares with a registration of 13,641 in the city of Atlanta, during the "rush hour" of the day it will be next to impossible to cast a vote, unless the voters take an early start. This appeal calls upon the Joe Brown men to appear at the polls in the morning where possible and early in the afternoon by all means.

The statement in full is as follows: To the Supporters of Hon. Joseph M. Brown: The arrangements made by the executive committee for the conduct of the election in this county is of doubtful adequacy. It is of the utmost importance to our cause that you should go to the polls at the earliest practicable time tomorrow, if you wait you may be disfranchised. Avoid the rush hours, if convenient, and cast your vote before 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon if possible.

The election of an executive committee is but little importance, as compared with the governor's race, and if there are others waiting their turn when you enter, then vote with all possible speed, and thus enable the man next to you to cast a vote of which he might otherwise be deprived.

If this course is generally pursued we will tomorrow roll up one of the largest majorities ever given a candidate for governor in the history of this county. J. R. SMITH, Chairman.

DEATH CLAIMS GEN. BULLER

He Took Prominent Part in Conduct of Boer War.

London, June 2.—General Sir Redvers Henry Buller, who had been ill for some weeks past, is dead. He was born in 1839.

General Buller entered the army in 1858, and in 1891 he had risen to the rank of lieutenant general. He served in China in 1890, in the Ashanti war in 1874, in the Kaffir war and the Zulu war in 1878-79; he was in South Africa in 1881, and in Egypt in 1882, and was present at the battle of Tel-El-Kheir; he also fought in the Sudan war in 1894, and was under secretary for Ireland in 1887.

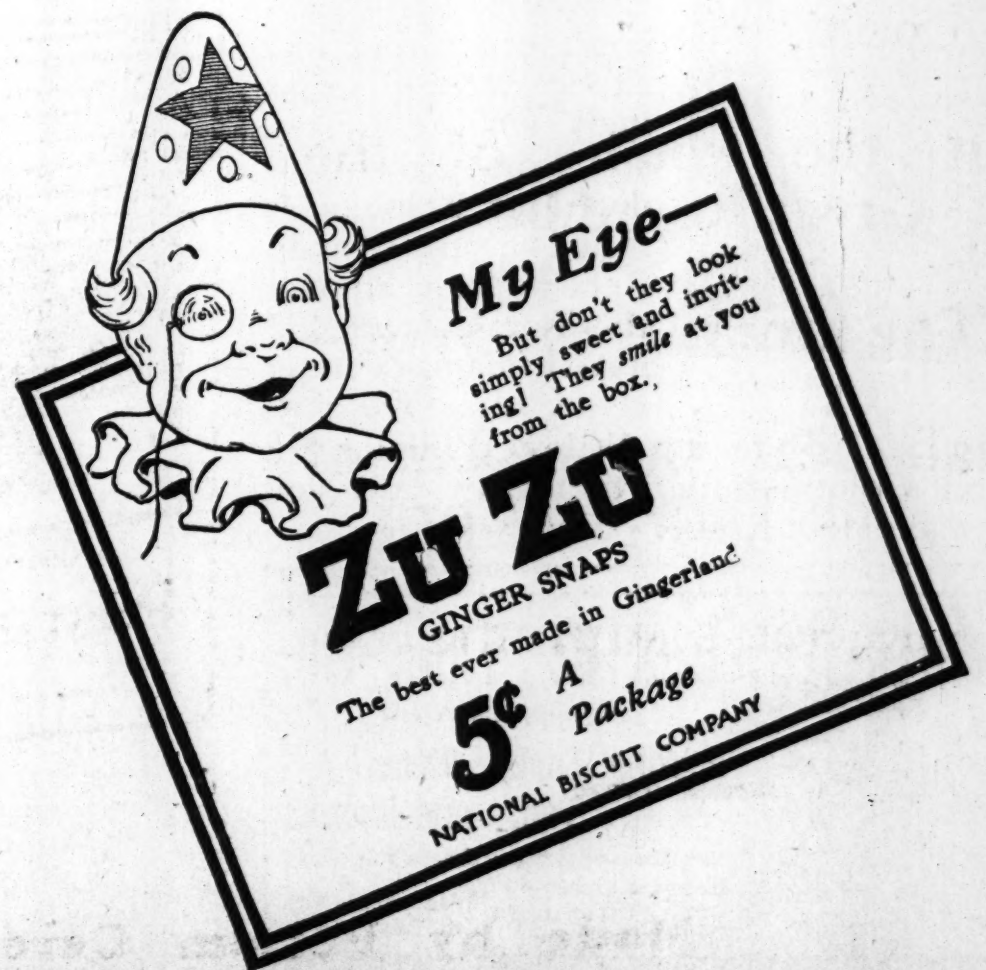

He went out to South Africa during the Boer war in 1899, first as general commanding the forces in South Africa and afterwards as general officer commanding in Natal. He conducted the operations for the relief of Ladysmith, which was successfully accomplished after an investment of 118 days, and subsequently he conducted the operations that resulted in the expulsion of the Boer army from Natal.

In April General Buller contracted a chill in London, and this indisposition was followed by a severe attack of jaundice and other complications.

General Buller married Lady Audrey Jane Charlotte, daughter of the fourth marquis Townshend.

He Won by Walking.

Anniston, Ala., June 2.—On a wager of $150 Ed Gullmartin, a local athlete, walked 12 miles to Jacksonville this afternoon in one hour and fifty-four minutes. The time limit was two hours and fifteen minutes.

WE HAVE THE ENDORSEMENT OF MR. CULBERSON; WHO WILL ENDORSE JUDGE PALMER?

The County Commissioners Have Endorsed Their "Own Chick" Hatched Out in Their Own Political Incubator.

Who does not recall the memorable contest of two years ago, when Culbertson, Sharp, Woodward, Branan, Girardeau, Clark and Draper were offering for the place of county treasurer?

Under the direct supervision of the county commissioners is the county police force. During this campaign murders, rapes, thieving and thugery were being committed thick and fast, and the county police were in hot pursuit of votes for Hubert Culbertson, then county commissioner. Meanwhile our county commissioner sat steady in the boat, sawed wood and said nothing.

The superior advantage given Culbertson landed him in office, at a salary of $2,400 per year for less than an average of four hours per day actual work.

As a culmination of the various crimes committed during the campaign the riot came. A citizenship inflamed, maddened, people blinded to everything but vengeance-opportunity!!! A doubled police force—today two men hunting voters where one was before—the perpetuation of men in office—must continue.

Back to the commissioners' table. Hands all around. "Nobody Works Like Culbertson." "Hard Times, Goodby." "Political Economy, Avant." Mr. Legislature, give him $3,000. Ye Gods, the dance is on. The deed is done. The ring crowd is dancing and the taxpayers are furnishing the music.

HEBREWS ARE PREPARING FOR FEAST OF "PENTECOST"

Friday and Saturday the Hebrews of Atlanta will celebrate with characteristic ceremony the holiday known in Hebrew as "Shavuot," or the Feast of Weeks, but also called "Pentecost," or Fiftieth Day. It is referred to as Pentecost since the method of determining the date of the holiday is by counting an interval of fifty days from the offering of the first sheaf of the harvest at the Feast of Passover. The fiftieth day is set aside as a day of thanksgiving for the harvest.

This interval of seven weeks is known as "Shavuot" and corresponds in character to the Christian period, Lent. During this time it is sacrilegious to hold any wedding ceremony, or any other festivity. This custom is based upon a tradition, that during this interval, in the war between Bar Kochba and the Romans, 24,000 scholars of Rabbi Akiba were killed by a pestilence.

The sheriff's office is a business office representing a constituency of one hundred and fifty thousand people.

LEGISLATURE

ALEX W. STEPHENS, ESQ.

His many old friends here in Washington and Wilkes county will be interested in the fact that Alex W. Stephens, an old Washington boy, who now makes his home in Atlanta, is a candidate for the office of representative in the legislature from Fulton county. They all sincerely hope he will be elected, and assure the voters of Fulton that he is in every way qualified for the position. He would honor the county of his adoption, and would add luster to Wilkes, as has been done by many other of her sons, who have gone out to other fields of activity.—From Washington Gazette-Chronicle.

BENJ. H. COX, JR., V. S.,
1114 Candler Bldg., Atlanta.

Atlanta, Ga., June 2nd, 1908.

To My Friends and Voters in the City and County:
After fully considering the question of making the race for County Commissioner, I decided not to do it at this time, believing that the interest of the County would be equally as well cared for by some of the other candidates who were already out, and who had already made considerable headway in the campaign. Mr. Turman, being already before the public for one of these positions, and being well acquainted with the condition of the public roads all over the county, I felt sure he was well qualified, and that his candidacy would meet with the approval of the public generally.

There are two places to be filled; Judge Rosser having declined to stand for reelection, leaves a vacancy on the South and West sides, and, inasmuch as there are two places to be filled, I take pleasure in endorsing Mr. Turman for one of these two vacancies. There are three candidates, and two to be elected, and for the benefit of those who may not be personally acquainted with Mr. Turman I wish to say that I believe he will make an able and impartial member of the Board. He has taken an active interest in the school work of the County, having been a member of the Fulton County Board of Education for several years. He rendered valuable service in increasing the free term from four months to nine months, so that all the children in the County now have the same advantage (so far as the Grammar schools are concerned) as the City Children. Through the efforts of the Board and their Commissioner, Mr. Brittain, quite a number of new schools have been built throughout the different Districts in the last few years.

I believe Mr. Turman will be of much value to the Board of County Commissioners, should he be elected, both as to the matter of taxes and road work.

Very respectfully,

T. J. HIGHTOWER, JR.

The total registration for the city is 13,641. Added to this the county registration, 4,175, it makes a grand total of 17,816.

Tax Collector Andy Stewart has completed the lists of voters for the managers of the wards, and they are ready to be handed over.

He announced that all those who had paid taxes for one year and yet have not been registered in the county would be investigated and handled by the grand jury. Tax Collector Stewart says it is false registration to pay taxes for one year when more than that amount is owed the state.

So anxious was a certain citizen of this county to vote that he has paid back taxes for twenty-seven years. He was given a chance to register provided he qualified before the date of election.

THEATERS

"Charley's Aunt."
No more delightful comedies have ever been written about a more laughable comedy than those which appeared in the Atlanta papers in regard to "Charley's Aunt," which is the offering at the Grand this week by the Cien company. "Charley's Aunt" is a laugh from start to finish and the audience fully agreed with the one of the night before that it is one of the most pleasing which this splendid organization has yet offered to the Atlanta theatregoers.

"Charley's Aunt" will be presented on Thursday and Friday nights at the Bijou theater, returning to the Grand for the Saturday matinee and night. Tickets will be sold at the Grand up to Thursday night.

At the Casino.

There is no question about the merit of the vaudeville attractions at beautiful Ponce de Leon's Casino this week. The bill is one of the very best that has been seen in Atlanta and contains more artistic and refined quality than the average offering of the sort, and there is the comedy and novelty qualities that make it an entertainment of more than passing interest.

It may interest to know that Mabel McKimber, the niece of the great president, who is an artist of rare quality, will be the headline feature for the week that starts on Monday.

At Ponce de Leon.

Unless all indications fail the attendance record for a season at Ponce de Leon will be broken this summer before the pretty report closes. Despite several days of rain during the first two weeks, the aggregate attendance at the park afternoon and night was considerably greater than the attendance for any previous season. The third week has started with a rush and promises to be Ponce's banner week.

The fl. fas. in the hands of the sheriff to be settled and then cancelled on the Records of the County of Fulton, are all important, and J. W. Nelms' office men always see to that important matter.

Anthony E. Porter, New York Lawyer, Took Chloroform.

New York, June 2.—Tired of life after 70 years, Anthony E. Porter, senior member of the law firm of Porter & Kilvert killed himself in his office today by inhaling chloroform. He had made careful preparations for his death and wrote a letter to a nephew requesting him to take charge of all of his affairs and to have his body cremated. On a table in the office where Porter had killed himself, was found a note asking that several persons be notified of his death.

Mr. Porter was a native of Georgia and formerly lived in Chicago. He served in the union army during the civil war.

HANDSOME GIFT TO MAYOR.

Draft for $11,000 Is Presented to Smith, of St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., June 2.—A few minutes after Robert A. Smith had retired from the office of the mayor of St. Paul today he was handed an envelope containing a draft for $11,000. This amount had been contributed by eighty-one business men of St. Paul as an appreciation of the ex-mayor's services to the city. Ex-Mayor Smith is 81 years of age and has an office-holding record of fifty years in this county. At one time he was a very wealthy man, but the failure of a bank of which he was an officer led him to voluntarily dispose of all his property to make the loss to depositors as small as possible.

LAST CAMPAIGN RALLIES WILL BE HELD TONIGHT

The Mangum supporters held a rally at East Point last night, attended by 500 people. There was marked enthusiasm for each speaker, and witty sallies brought forth laughing response from the audience. The meeting was in the open air and the speakers stood on the front of the school house steps.

Addresses were made by Sam Sheppard, of the ticket; Colonel J. F. Daniel, of West End, and he was followed by William M. Smith, who answered the charges made against him in an afternoon paper.

Judge R. L. Rodgers told of one man who had been confined in jail for a month without any charge having been brought against him.

Professor M. F. Ramsey spoke of the escape of Barton and Harper on February 2, this year, and the fact that for thirty days the jail doors swung on wooden hinges without discovery on the part of Dr. Nelms until he was shown by a prisoner captured in a neighboring state and brought back here how it was done.

Carl Hutcheson made a rousing talk, denying that Dr. Nelms had even shown him any special favors.

Meeting for Nelms.

There was a rally for Sheriff Nelms held last night at Harper's and Weather's in Cook's district, attended by some 400 voters.

Those who made addresses were

James W. Hanson, Mr. Lacy, Dr. Nelms and a number of others. W. E. Carnes acted as the chairman of the occasion.

Tonight the friends of Dr. Nelms will gather at the Orpheum for a rally, which will mark the end of the campaign.

The friends of Congressman L. F. Livingston will hold a rally tonight at 8 o'clock at the corner of Boulevard and Houston streets.

NO "JIM CROW" CHURCHES ARE WANTED IN THE NORTH

Pittsburg, June 2.—The general assembly of the United Presbyterian church, in session here, became involved in an animated discussion of the racial question today while considering the report of the board of Freedmen's Missions, presented by Rev. Dr. J. W. Witherspoon, corresponding secretary of the board.

"We want no 'Jim Crow' churches in the north," said Rev. Dr. S. Littell, "what we do want is the church of Jesus Christ. The white and black attend our public schools together. Then, why should they not attend God's house together?"

This remark was called out by a resolution providing that colored members of the United Presbyterian church in the north shall be placed in the care of the Presbyteries where they reside, and that the churches be taken over by the board of home missions, the same as dependent white congregations.

Dr. Carson, the moderator, explained that the intent of the resolution was to shepherd the colored churches of the north as churches, rather than as individual members. Dr. Carson said he understood the colored people of the north prefer this plan. The resolution was adopted.

Announcement was made that funds had been secured to meet the conditions under which Andrew Carnegie will provide a $10,000 library for the college at Knoxville, Tenn., and that the library is assured.

ATLANTA, GA., June 3, 1908.

June 4 and July 4—two licks at the fireworks this time!

And soon the Georgia campaign will be but a blazing memory.

Anyway, June will be a "short" month—for many candidates.

No delegates are "at large" where the candidates can rope 'em in.

They may divide Texas, but Senator Bailey will always be found on the right half.

National representatives are now homeward bound to explain why congress didn't do it.

Though Marse Henry says Johnson "came late," he seems to have no intention of leaving early.

The howlegged bachelors of Texas were strictly in it when it came to climbing trees in the flooded districts.

That alleged earthquake shock in Pennsylvania may have been nothing greater than the collapse of the Knox locom.

It is said that Secretary Taft is a poor man; but he has never been candid enough to say that he really needs the office.

"It takes four years to train a lion for exhibition," says The Washington Post, but a blind tiger learns all the tricks in short order.

Kansas isn't howling about anything in particular these days; but this must not be taken as evidence that she is at last resigned to fate.

"Try the potato as a brain food," says a French scientist. But in these strenuous times some people can't afford bushels and bushels of them.

The Chicago Post says that the month of June moves many persons to self-destruction. Well, it always was a great month for political candidates.

Privately Speaker Cannon thinks that what the country needs is a president who can run congress by merely pressing a button in the white house.

When the grafters in the Pittsburgh jail heard that Carry Nation was to visit them they must have felt like hanging up the motto, "God Save Our Home."

A Pittsburg man fought a rattlesnake to a finish. Bank looters and grafters are stale news now, and Pittsburg wants free advertising in an original line.

The Charleston News and Courier speaks with authority when it says that all of the candidates for United States senator in South Carolina eat with their forks.

No doubt of it—the "Charlotte Corday Hat" will come "high," but the merry widow lid still rejoices in the reputation of being all flower-garden and a yard wide.

Uncle Joe Cannon is quoted as telling a Washington policeman to "go to the devil." Uncle Joe was speeding in an automobile, and thought he was talking to a congressman.

PUBLICITY; WINNING THE FIGHT FOR GREATER ATLANTA

Since it is virtually settled that the Greater Atlanta $1,500,000 bond issue is to go before the people for their final verdict, the energy of every citizen who realizes the life-and-death nature of the project will now center upon such broad publicity as will insure success for the issue at the polls; and the energy of officials of the Chamber of Commerce and of the city government, should center upon plans perfecting in every detail, the manner in which this money will be expended with the greatest advantage to the present generation and to posterity.

The mere fact that the bond-proposal has with such ease overcome the formidable obstacles that at first lay in its pathway, is an invincible demonstration of the value of fair-mindedness joined to intelligent publicity.

When Dr. Longino, many months ago, first introduced the resolution citing the dangerously inadequate status of our sewerage, water and other facilities, and called for a $1,000,000 bond issue to remedy them, his proposition was met with open indifference and incredulity.

The sum he asked seemed tremendous. The needs it was to supply appeared by no means imminent.

The revolution in public sentiment, now visible, is nothing less than dramatic. It is a lasting vindication of the "Atlanta spirit," an unanswerable demonstration of the perception and the patriotism of the people of this city.

The matter came to a crisis some months ago with the publication by The Constitution of a trenchant card from Harry L. Schlesinger, driving home Atlanta's imperative needs, flaying the spirit of indifference, calling upon citizens to rally in a campaign for the redemption of Atlanta.

With the publication of this last call, sentiment for the issue spread like fire through dry prairie grass. Many of the most prominent taxpayers, many of the most influential officials of the city expressed themselves in strong sympathy with the movement.

The fight, however, was not yet won.

Evincing public spirit by a quick response to expressions from the people, the Chamber of Commerce undertook to probe exhaustively the merits of the demand for the bond issue. Twenty-five of its members, men from every walk in life, typical of every class, of every interest, several of them the largest taxpayers, were delegated to undertake this difficult mission. They approached their task, avowedly, in an attitude of skepticism.

They heard exhaustive and expert testimony on every count in the demand.

The result: The sum asked was INCREASED TO $1,500,000.

Meanwhile, The Constitution had daily been driving the affair home to the people.

It had shown them, too often for enumeration, that 10,000 HOMES IN THIS CITY, WITHOUT SEWER OR WATER FACILITIES, WERE POTENTIAL BREEDERS OF DISEASE; THAT 50,000 CITIZENS, PAYING TAXES, WERE NOT GIVEN FACILITIES TO WHICH THEY WERE ENTITLED; THAT OUR SCHOOL FACILITIES WERE INADEQUATE; THAT EACH SINGLE COUNT OF THE COMMITTEE OF TWENTY-FIVE WAS SUBSTANTIATED.

It was publicity, investigation and public spirit that brought this vital problem to the present phase of its solution; the same forces must carry it over the hurdle of a popular election, which cannot be held until early in next year.

Now—
The moment council secures the necessary legal authority from the general assembly, members from its body should cooperate with the Chamber of Commerce in forecasting, TO THE LAST DOLLAR, IF POSSIBLE, how the proceeds of the bonds are to be invested.

Time is ample. The manner in which the money is spent is to have an imperative bearing on the health and the lives of more than 125,000 people, on cutting down the death-rate of the city so that we shall take the rank that to us properly belongs—PRECEDENCE OVER ALL AMERICAN CITIES IN HEALTHFULNESS; and it will also determine how we shall develop and improve institutions that are to serve our children no less than ourselves.

The track is clear! Let us get down to actual preliminaries.

A GOOD TIME TO BUY A HOME IN ATLANTA.

The $1,500,000 municipal bond issue is, practically assured. The city of Atlanta, henceforth, will be one of the healthiest, the most up-to-the-minute, the most thriving municipalities in the country.

The improvements which are inevitable, will enhance all property values. They will bring thousands of new and substantial residents, many large and small manufacturers, to this city.

These facts conspire to present an opportunity, unexcelled, for the resident of Atlanta to own his home.

Read the following striking argument supporting the advantages of home-owning from The Metropolis, published in Jacksonville, where they are also fighting for a bigger and a healthier city:

It makes a man a better citizen. You take the man who does not own his own house, and he never knows whether he is going to live six months, twelve months or ten years in the city of Jacksonville, but if he owns a house, and it is paid for, he becomes a permanent resident. He is interested in the question of taxation. He naturally becomes interested in the city, county and state government. He is more independent, and in many cases far more reliable than the man who has let his opportunities slip by him.

Home-owning makes "a man a better citizen."

There can be no gainsaying that sturdy fact. It was the home-owning, tax-paying element that brought the campaign for municipal improvements to its present auspicious status. Always it has been the home-owning element that has been in the front rank of Atlanta's army of development, and that has reaped the richest rewards from the growth of the city and the up-building of its industries.

Building material is at a minimum price it will never reach again, perhaps, in the history of Georgia. Labor, of all grades, is abundant. You can construct now at a figure that, within a short while, will probably be raised 33-1-3 per cent.

You can put money in your own pocket; you can provide employment for thousands of workmen.

IT'S A MIGHTY GOOD TIME TO BUY OR BUILD A HOME IN ATLANTA!

END OF THE YAQUI WAR.

If the plans of the Mexican government to bring an end to the century-old struggle with the Yaqui Indians and to peacefully assimilate them as citizens, culminate in success, Mexico will have taken the most forward step that can be accredited to that country in the last decade.

Under the direction of President Diaz, the situation appears to have been well handled, and unless present plans in some way miscarry, June 15 will witness a peace compact which promises to end for all time one of the bloodiest and fiercest race struggles that has ever marred a nation's history.

The United States has more than a passing interest in the termination of this warfare. Aside from the humanitarian view, there have been not a few American citizens involved in one way and another, and at times it has appeared the state department would have to take a hand. Fortunately, however, nothing of a sufficiently serious nature has happened to mar diplomatic relations.

Savage in their nature, the warfare on the part of the Indians has been characterized by deeds of bloody horror in which defenseless men, women and children have been the victims. And the Mexican government, on its part, has been no less cruel, for the apparent hopelessness of peaceful solution, led to a war of extermination in which the government troops slaughtered right and left, regardless of age, sex or condition.

Some of the reports made the government out apparently even more brutal than the Indians. There was one story to the effect that hundreds of the captive Indians were sent out to sea in rotten vessels which were never again seen or heard of. The authenticity of such reports as these is extremely doubtful, though there seems to be no question that in every conflict with the Indians, in which the troops had the upper hand, they left the field strewn with dead Yaquis, and did not burden themselves with prisoners.

It is apparent that the Yaquis have come to realize the hopelessness of the struggle, and are ready to terminate it on any sort of terms that will guarantee them life, liberty and property. These the Mexican government stands ready to assure them, if they lay down their arms and turn their attention to pursuits of peace.

If the Yaqui nation assents to the terms agreed upon by its leaders in recent conference with representatives of the government, June 15 will witness the ratification of terms which will end the bloody struggle for all time. Such an eventuality will mean a proud achievement in Mexican history.

A western university has dropped a dozen or more students from the rolls. It is sometimes impossible to hammer the glorious game of football into the dull brains of some people.

No sympathy for Alfred G. Vanderbilt because his income is not quite a million a year. Think of the lawyers that much money can hire in a divorce court.

COTTON ACREAGE REDUCTION.

There does not appear to be a doubt that the campaign of the Farmers' Union for a material reduction of the south's cotton acreage, is meeting with success.

Acres reduction was made the Union slogan for 1908, and according to reports received from all the cotton producing states, Union members have been prompt to respond, with the result that a material decrease is shown. Based upon information gathered through members of the organization in all the cotton states, the state presidents of the Union at Memphis, issued a statement to the effect that this year's acreage is 28,832,000 as compared with 31,311,000 in 1907. Even the recent estimate shows an appreciable decrease of nearly 2 per cent. The Union estimate, on the other hand, shows a reduction of more than 8 per cent.

With all other things equal the Farmers' Union estimate would mean a decrease of 1,000,000 bales in the new crop as compared with last year. It is, of course, a part of the speculative game to ignore the estimates made by the farmers themselves, notwithstanding the fact that they are in, perhaps, better position than anyone else to know of actual conditions.

But the views of the producers have been borne out before, on occasions, much to the discomfiture of the speculative element, and conditions are now present which would seem to give ample authority to their prediction.

Storms and overflows in some of the most productive sections have wrought extensive havoc, and in large areas the crop is from ten days to two weeks late. While it is impossible to predict the final outcome, dependent as it is upon future weather conditions, these early conditions always have some bearing on the fruitage.

If the Farmers' Union acreage estimate is, therefore, well founded, and there appears to be every reason to believe that it is, the basis of a fair price for the new crop has been laid.

And it is a foundation that the speculative element will find difficult to shake.

Letter to the Home Folks.

"Just three more days now," wrote the old man to the home-folks, "an' the returns 'll be in, an' I'll be home ag'in, an' lookin' after business. I know there's been changes at home since I've been a-runnin', an' I make no doubt but the children have growed some, an' I reckon the yard-dog will have trouble reckonin' me, for I've thinned down durin' the campaign, an' I'm as hungry for home-vitties as the profligate's son was. I've been after 'the fat of the land' since I hopped into the race, but Lord knows I ain't been livin' on it. Kicks the children for me, an' tell 'em I ain't dead, but mighty nigh it!"

The Money-Man.

They may say what they please o' glee world,
But it's always delightful and sunny—
Though never a blossom
May fall on his bosom—
To the man who has ever the money!
The sunshine falls soft as a dream,
And the bees in the winter make honey,
And the river—it ripples
With sunny tipples
To the man who has ever the money!
In winter the fires burn bright,
And the dulcet of sayings are funny:
And spite of life's riot,
The whole world is quiet
To the man who has ever the money!

"Our Country."

W. E. Pabor has a fine Decoration Day poem in The Jacksonville Times-Union. Here are two of the closing stanzas:

"Flag of a nation, free and great!
Each star that on thy soft folds glows
Is the bright emblem of a state
Whose Union a Republic shows.
The many in the one unite!
Our country, whether wrong or right.
"Red roses, passion's type, we take;
White lilies, emblems of the pure;
And pansies, for remembrance sake,
Red, white and blue! These shall endure
While graves of boys in blue and gray
Await God's Decoration day."

"We'll soon forget poifities," says The Adams Enterprise, "in the cool fence corner where the furrow ends, and the Georgia watermelon is waiting to be carved to the heart!"

The Chains That Davis Wore.

Before a jury of his peers he stands—
Our chief in peace and in our wars!
A jury of the noble of all lands,
At history's judgment-bar.
And Freedom tells how, facing shame and death,
Her legions on he led—
How rang his voice, like silver bugle's breath,
Where freemen fought and bled.
And Victory, emerging from the gloom
And darkness of the strife,
Beside him waits with wreath of laurel-bloom.
To crown his noble life.
Erect and proud, before mankind he stands,
As towered the Kinky Saul,
With pure and dauntless soul, while from his hands
The chains of iron fall.
And as they fall, as if with light aflame,
The glowing links behold!
For lo! the magic alchemy of Fame
Transmutes them into golden rings

Letters from the People

Georgia Marble.

Editor Constitution: While discussion of Atlanta's school buildings is going on, the following from The Boston Journal of Education will doubtless be read with interest:

"Bristol, R. I., has the most exquisite high school, probably in the United States. It is the gift of S. P. Colt, whose residence adjoins the high school grounds. There are larger school buildings, but few are more costly, and none approach it in cost in proportion to the population of the town. It is of Georgia marble and bronze. On each side of the center square, about half the area is of rich bronze, the carving of the marble is by artistic sculptors; the pillars, 25 feet high and 2½ feet in diameter, are solid marble. The abundance of carved adornments indicates the entire absence of any thought of cost. The building is breasting to the limit, all the finish is of Georgia marble, with artistic carving in every appropriate place. Auditorium, laboratories, library, classrooms, toilet rooms, rest rooms and hallways are not only of marble, but are pedagogically ideal with the latest appliances for sanitation as well as education."
If Atlanta had one such building all the world would know her, and the Georgia products, human and otherwise.
Atlanta, Ga., June 1. DEKALB.

IN THE COURTS

Fulton county grand jury for the May term will hold a meeting on Friday morning at 10 o'clock in the solicitor's office. Prosecutors in all superior court cases are asked to appear before Solicitor C. D. Hill this morning to prepare bills for the jury, which will meet on Friday.

The petitioners are represented by Eugene Talmadge.

FULL ELECTION RETURNS TO BE GIVEN AT ORPHEUM

Arrangements Made So Ladies and Their Escorts Will Not Stand on the Streets.

Full and complete returns of the state election Thursday evening will be given at the Orpheum. Arrangements were made to use the Orpheum for this purpose in order that ladies and their escorts could have an opportunity to hear the results of the election without the discomfiture of standing in the streets at night.

A small charge of 25 cents will be made and seats can be reserved at that price and are now on sale at the box office.

The theater will be well ventilated and each person will be supplied with a fan. The returns will be flashed upon a canvas from a stereopticon.

WILL SECURE LEGAL WORKS.

State Enters Into Contract With Local Company.

In the state library at the state capitol there is kept on file a copy of every legal work published anywhere in the country. Many of these books are secured by exchange, as all official publications by the government and publications by each state are furnished to the state libraries and to the secretaries of state of each state in the union.

For the past twenty years Georgia has had a contract with the publishing firm of Soney & Sage, of Newark, N. J., to look out for all legal volumes issued from private presses in this country, and also the legal volumes published in England and Canada. Recently this contract was terminated, and on yesterday a local concern, The Harrison Company, was given the agency for this state.

At the head of the Harrison Company is George W. Harrison, who was president and general manager of the Franklin Printing and Publishing Company until 1906. He is president of the new company; George W. Harrison, Jr., is treasurer, and J. T. Doonan is secretary.

CUT IN BAR STEEL.

A Reduction of $4 Per Ton Is Announced.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 2.—A cut of $4 a ton in bar steel was in effect today. A rumor that such a cut was authorized at a meeting of a committee of the Bar Steel Manufacturers of New York yesterday was confirmed by John R. Scott, manager of the Carnegie Steel Company here today. The new price goes into effect at once, but will affect only manufacturers' stock. The cut is based upon the Pittsburgh rate of $1.80 per hundred pounds. The new price is $1.40 per hundred.

In view of the action of the steel industry, it is reasonable to expect that the bar iron manufacturers also may make a reduction. Bar iron now is selling at $30 a ton. The reduction authorized by the committee represents mainly the United States Steel Corporation interests, and was made to meet the competition of the bar iron manufacturers.

New York, June 2.—Concerning the reported cut in the price of steel bars at Cleveland, Judge Gary, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, made the following statement to the committee. It will not interfere with the movement in favor of the stability of business conditions.

Dying From Fall From Bicycle.

Bessemer, Ala., June 2.—(Special.)—Paul Schellieck, member of the firm of Schellieck Brothers, prominent and wealthy merchants of Bessemer, was dying here from injuries received by being thrown from his bicycle. He was proceeding rapidly when the front wheel of his bicycle gave way and he was hurled through the air, landing on his head on a street car rail. He was removed to a hospital and has not regained consciousness.

GREAT BARBECUE FOR EMORY MEN

New Feature for Alumni Re-union.

FORMER STUDENTS INVITED

Good Things to Eat Will Be Prepared by Charles A. Garrard, of Washington, Pastmaster at the Business-Bishop Candler Will Speak.

Emory college commencement will have a new feature this year. The Atlanta alumni of that institution will give a mammoth barbecue to all alumni and former students on Tuesday, June 9, when the savory odor of Brunswick stew and other good things to eat will waft the classic shades of all Emory alumni out of their lairs for something they have never seen before.

Every year the alumni association of the college holds a reunion dinner commencing next week and this year the Atlanta alumni decided to give an entertainment that would appeal to the popular taste. L. B. Robeson, president of the association began mailing invitations to all former Emory men as soon as the arrangements were complete.

He had addressed a large number of them, but not all. But all who at one time attended Emory, whether they were graduated or not, are invited to be present, and the indications are that there will be at the reunion the largest crowd that ever came together in Oxford.

Bishop Candler Will Speak.

Preceding the barbecue Bishop Warren A. Candler will address the gathering of ex-students in the Methodist church. His talk promises to be a very interesting one.

Then will come the barbecue on the college campus. After the meal the business meeting of the alumni association will be held in the college chapel. As usual, the old students will inspect the different branches of the college.

Atlanta will be the first gathering point and all alumni are asked to reach this city not later than Monday evening, June 8. The Kimball will be headquarters for the party and on the next morning they will go to Oxford in a body in special cars over the Georgia railroad.

Without doubt this will be the greatest alumni reunion ever held at Emory. The entire day will be given over to the old boys and the afternoon will be spent in social intercourse on the campus. This innovation, the barbecue, will be a big drawing card. It has been arranged with painstaking care, the alumni scoring a good point when they get Colonel Garrard to superintend the cooking.

WHEELBARROW RIDE BET ON RACE FOR GOVERNOR

Money is not the only thing which is being wagered on the gubernatorial election in Atlanta.

Manual labor and humor are also being used as stakes for the result.

There was posted yesterday a bet between George Freeman, one of the best known clerks on Whitehall street, and Alfred C. Brown, an attorney, with offices in the Century building, the result of which will be witnessed with interest and amusement.

George Freeman is a supporter of Hon. Joseph M. Brown for governor, and Attorney Brown is supporting Governor Smith.

If Mr. Brown is nominated Attorney Brown is to ride Mr. Freeman in a wheelbarrow from the middle of the block on Whitehall street, between Hunter and Alabama, to the apex of the Whitehall street viaduct.

If Mr. Smith is nominated the operation will be reversed.

EVIDENCE IN RATE CASE.

Splendid Address by T. S. Hawes Before Examiner Lamb.

Bainbridge, Ga., June 2.—(Special.)—Evidence in the case of the Bainbridge Board of trade v. the Atlantic Coast Line railroad et al. was completed in this city last evening before Examiner Lamb of the interstate commerce commission. The Atlantic Coast Line was represented by General Freight Agent Menzies as witness, the Louisville and Nashville by Traffic Manager Compton as witness, and the Georgia, Florida and Alabama by Traffic Manager Prince as witness. Examiner Baxter conducted the case for the railroad.

Hon. T. S. Hawes, of this city, represented the board of trade, and his brilliant presentation of this city's claims for reduced freight rates on account of her natural advantages, seemed to greatly impress the commissioner and caused the railroad to view the city's claims with less antagonism than anticipated.

Bainbridge has a line of steamer plying between the city and deep water on regular schedules, and the board of trade insists, mainly for this reason, that rates should be as low as any city of like location and natural advantages.

NEAR BEER LICENSE $1,000.

Waynesboro Council Practically Prohibits Sale in That City.

Waynesboro, Ga., June 2.—(Special.)—The city council has passed an ordinance making the "near beer" sellers' license at $1,000 per year. This is quite a surprise, and will have a tendency toward prohibiting the sale of "near beers" in the city.

The city council last night gave as an annual appropriation to the military company in the city $200 per year. The city fathers realize the necessity for keeping up the military, and have always been very generous towards it.

Stork Is Coming to Spain.

Madrid, June 2.—The official gazette announced today that the accouchement of Queen Victoria is expected at the end of June.

HAS HOOPER ALEXANDER VIOLATED OFFICIAL OATH?

Has Hooper Alexander violated his oath of office?

Do his acts, and doings, and his term for which he has been elected, make him ineligible for the term which he aspires to? The records in the comptroller's office show that he was appointed special attorney in a certain litigation for the Western and Atlantic railroad; that on March 21, 1908, he received voucher No. 369, $250; that he was appointed special attorney in the franchise tax matter of the Georgia railroad, for which warrant April 7, 1908, No. 562, for $250. They further show that he was appointed special attorney for the Central Georgia railroad, and was paid on September 23, 1907, voucher No. 1173, $250.

The records will further show that he was appointed special attorney to represent the state for rents claimed for the Western and Atlantic railroad for use by the government during the sixties. The fees paid are undoubtedly retained, and he has coming to him out of these contracts very much larger fees than those paid. Indeed, it is said that by contract with the government he is to receive 10 per cent on three million dollars, which would make a fee of three hundred thousand dollars in one case.

In asking the question above, it is further suggested that Mr. Alexander's patriotism on behalf of his people in carrying through legislative matters carries with it by reason of his preference with the present governor a very healthy compensation. As to the question asked, we quote here Section 5754 of the code, and if the English language means anything it means that Mr. Alexander is not now, nor will he be during his appointment as special attorney by the governor, eligible to the seat in the house of representatives in the state of Georgia.

5754. (8080.) Par. 7. Eligibility: Appointments forbidden: "No person holding a military commission, or other appointment, or office having any emolument or compensation annexed thereto, under this state, or the United States, or either of them, except justices of the peace and officers of the militia, nor any defaulter for public money or for any legal taxes required of him, shall have a seat in either house; nor shall any senator or representative, after his qualification as such, be elected by the general assembly, or appointed by the governor, either with or without the advice and consent of the senate, to any office or appointment having any emolument annexed thereto, during the time for which he shall have been elected."

A DE KALB VOTER.

SHALL IT BE SMITH AND POVERTY OR BROWN AND PROSPERITY?

Hoke Smith asks for reelection on the ground that he has not frightened capital from Georgia. He has often boasted that no specific proof of such intimidation could be brought against him.

The following SPECIFIC PROOF is from the Joe Brown Club of Dougherty county. It cites a fraction of what this subtle destroyer of values has cost the state of Georgia.

Had the projects named been inaugurated, there would have been employed on their construction thousands of laborers, skilled and unskilled.

Upon their completion, other thousands of laborers would have been placed upon permanent pay rolls, adding hundreds of thousands of dollars to the income of the state, providing a splendid livelihood to hundreds of Georgia families, and tremendous increase in revenues to town and country merchants.

As long as Hoke Smith is absolute autocrat of this state, he will stand as a stone wall, turning back the capital needed for the prosperity of laborers, business men, bankers, farmers and capitalists.

One man should not be allowed to impede the prosperity of Georgia.

Read these extracts, CAREFULLY. Then decide whether you will SACRIFICE THE PERSONAL AMBITION AND AMBITION OF HOPE SMITH FOR THE DEVELOPMENT OF GEORGIA.

"Do you wonder that Mr. H. J. Bruton, of DeKalb county, and his associates, on account of those and similar threats were unable to get the promised funds from a New York syndicate to build a railroad from Albany via Bainbridge to St. Andrews, although the line had been surveyed and Mr. Bruton and his associates had been authorized by the syndicate to let out contracts for building the road?"

"Do you wonder that the plan to develop the water-power on the Flint river by the aid of foreign capital, and which seemed so near to realization, suddenly fell through, and that now the wonderful waters of the Flint go on unimpeded in their progress by artificial barriers and undisturbed by the sound of revolving machinery?"

"Do you wonder that the Anthony Shale Power Company, which had TWELVE MILLION DOLLARS in the bank to develop the immense water-power in Wilkes county, stopped all work in Georgia, and developed the water-powers in South Carolina, which state was wise enough at least to treat foreign capital fairly and impartially?"

"Do you wonder that the North Georgia Electric Company, of Hall county, which had been spending $25,000 per month for several years, had to stop all improvements and has been unable to obtain a single dollar of foreign capital?"

"AND ALL THIS HAPPENED, MR. SMITH, LONG BEFORE THE PANIC, WHICH YOU SAY 'WAS CAUSED BY THE FOREIGN FINANCIERS OF WALL STREET.'"

"Do you wonder now that nearly every saw mill in Georgia has shut down, railroad ties are not being cut, lumber mills have ceased to do business and that the bankruptcy court has become the popular forum for the administration of assets?"

These are merely KNOWN illustrations. The most acute business man in Georgia cannot compute the whole dimensions of capital literally stampeded from Georgia by the sheer moral effect of the attitude of this destroyer of values, made known in a thousand stamp-threats.

What is counted upon by Hoke Smith and his panic-stricken defenders to offset this BROAD TRAIL OF DESTRUCTION?

The ONE instance of the enlarged railroad commission of Georgia AUTHORIZING the issuance of $2,500,000 stock for water-power development on the Ocmulgee by the Middle Georgia Power Company has been seized upon as evidence that the administration is not unfriendly to capital.

That AUTHORIZATION is worthless, so long as capital is uncertain as to Georgia's future policies. For—

While it was granted a MONTH AGO, NOT ONE DOLLAR OF THE STOCK HAS BEEN PLACED, and the probable investors are today waiting to see how Georgia is going Thursday.

INVESTORS ARE HUGGING THE SHORE-LINE, REFUSING TO JEOPARDIZE THEIR FUNDS UNTIL THE RESULT OF THIS PRIMARY ASSURES THEM WHETHER AGITATION AND BROW-BEATING AND BAITING OR CAPITAL IS TO CONTINUE.

What is it to be?

The elevation of Hoke Smith, and the depression of Georgia?

The depression of Hoke Smith, and the elevation of Georgia?

JOSEPH THOMPSON FOR COUNTY TREASURER.

To the Public: Joseph Thompson, who is a candidate for county treasurer, has for many years been one of Atlanta's most prominent and progressive citizens.

During all these years there has never been a time that he has not been among the first to put his name to any fund raised by the enterprising citizens of this town for the benefit of the city—charitable or otherwise.

During all these years, when at the head of the Kimball house, he made it the headquarters for all the citizens' meetings, whether for men or women, and never charged a cent for it.

There has not been a public enterprise inaugurated in this city during the past twenty-five years in the development of which he has not been a liberal and potent factor.

During the time when Atlanta needed defenders in the stormy days of the civil war, he put on his uniform and went to the front as a mere boy.

During all these years he has done his duty as a citizen and as a friend, and no man can put the finger of criticism against any public or private act of his.

In character he is irreproachable, and as a liberal, public spirited, enterprising citizen his name is known throughout the state.

Mr. Thompson is a candidate for county treasurer. His name goes before the people of the county in which he has lived since infancy, with the full confidence of his friends that his long and honorable career as a citizen will commend his candidacy to the favorable consideration of the voters.

Certain it is that every man who casts a ballot for him will have the satisfaction of knowing that he is honoring a man who is in every way worthy of the trust and confidence of the people of the county.

COTTON MONOPLY FEARED BY EUROPE SEND REPORTS

Apprehension Marks the Debates at Paris Congress.

NEW COTTON FIELDS SOUGHT SURE OF 40,000 MAJORITY

European Spinners Urge the Extension of Cotton Growing in the Colonies, Especially in Egypt and in Africa.

Paris, June 2.—The reports to and the debates before the fifth international Congress of Spinners and Manufacturers, which opened in this city yesterday, all indicate that Europe stands in great fear of American monopoly, and feels the urgent necessity of freeing this immense manufacturing industry from American domination of the price of raw material, especially when cotton is the subject of speculative movements.

The official French report insists that foreign manufacturers have a right to fair prices in order to avoid a derangement of the industry abroad. Moritz Schary, German expert, expressed the opinion that while there is a possibility of a largely increased American production, labor difficulties beyond the Atlantic make an increase in the supply of American raw material abroad unlikely, especially as the United States government will greatly increase the consumption of its own cotton.

Cry Against Americans.

Herr Schary joins with his colleagues in the cry against the Americans on the ground that they are not disposed to deliver their cotton at fair prices. To remedy this condition the European delegates advocated first, some method to put a stop to improper speculation, and, second, the fostering and the extension of the production of cotton in the colonies of Europe, especially in Africa and Egypt.

It is claimed that in ten years' time these countries will be able to produce 10,000,000 bales of cotton a year.

The American delegates, contrary, contend that the southern states are the natural field of cotton production, and say they will be capable ultimately of an output amounting to a hundred million bales a year. D. A. Tompkins, of Charlotte, N. C., submitted a report in which he argued that the existence of a large new cotton area was probable, and that it was therefore the duty of the European manufacturers, instead of pursuing illusory dreams, to turn their attention to aiding emigration to the southern states, where, with adequate labor, sufficient cotton can be grown to supply the entire world.

Way to Reduce Price.

A. S. Perrell, of Chicago, insisted that the only way to reduce the price of cotton was to increase its production. The European manufacturers who had so greatly lessened the cost of manufacture, he said, could best contribute to this end by cooperating with the American planters in finding methods to lessen the cost of production.

At a secret session held this afternoon there came up for discussion a resolution in favor of organizing a systematic campaign of agitation to induce the governments of Europe to cooperate in the exploitation of colonial cotton production by furnishing seed and teaching the colonist how to plant and cultivate. The American delegates, realizing that the probability of such action are distant, present a passive attitude. Mr. Perrell, however, argued that some of the European opposition would be dissipated if greater care was exercised in the south in the picking and preparing of cotton.

Short Time in the Mills.

The delegates then discussed at length the question of working short time in mills during the crisis.

The committee of the congress finally proposed a compromise resolution to the effect that the best means of evading disaster in the trade, whether in the direction of lack of raw material, or over-production in mills, were to be found in the establishment of an international agreement relative to the restriction of production. The resolution, which probably will be voted, invites all confederated organizations of the various counties to act in harmony for a short time when conditions demand a concerted curtailment.

Manager Smith Confident of Brown's Election.

J. R. Smith, Campaign Manager for Hon. Joseph M. Brown, Reiterates Statement Which He Declares is Strengthened by Late Telegrams.

"We will have 40,000 majority; maybe 50,000."

This was the confident prediction made yesterday by J. R. Smith, manager of the Joseph M. Brown campaign, when seen at campaign headquarters.

"We have nothing to add to or take from the statement and prediction given out Monday afternoon. A number of additional telegrams received during the day only confirm the belief that our prediction will be verified on June 4."

Tickets Bearing Name of "Joseph E. Brown."

Telegrams from several parts of the state were received at the Brown headquarters yesterday, stating that it was rumored tickets bearing the name of "Joseph E. Brown" had been sent to a number of country counties, and urging Mr. Brown's friends to be on their guard.

No verification could be had of this rumor, and it was not known whether the tickets were put out by accident or design. Of course any ticket of this kind voted by a supporter of Mr. Brown would be thrown out and not counted. The managers of Mr. Brown have sent out cautions to the chairmen of the Joe Brown county committees urging them to see that no other tickets than the official tickets are distributed.

MISS ANNIE LOUISE HOOD WEDS MR. FRED ROBINSON

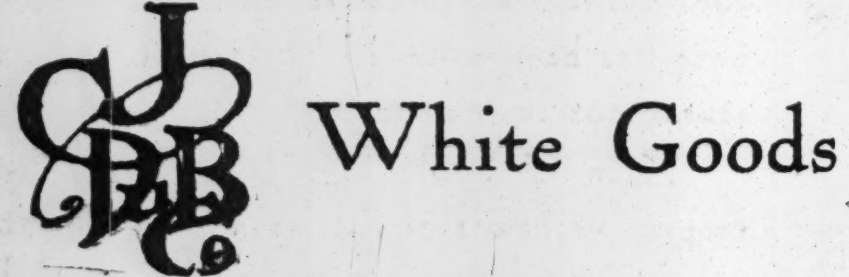

LaGrange, Ga., June 2.—(Special.)—The marriage of Miss Annie Louise Hood to Mr. Frederick C. Robinson, of Atlanta, which took place here tonight, was one of the most brilliant social events of the season.

The marriage occurred at the bride's home, a beautiful place built on the old colonial style, with large white columns, spacious lawns and wide and beautiful halls. The ceremony was performed in the back parlor before an improvised altar elaborately decorated and banked with white hydrangeas and brilliant with miniature electric lights.

As Miss Andrews, of Alabama, played Mendelssohn's wedding march, the ribbon-bearers, Misses Carrie Dallas and Carrie Fall Benson, entered, each carrying a beautiful bouquet of pink roses. They were followed by the matron of honor, Mrs. Walter Barnwell, of Atlanta, and then the maid of honor, Miss Mabel Seaton, both carrying bouquets of pink roses. Trilled with valley lilies. The bride entered alone and met the groom with white hydrangeas and brilliant with miniature electric lights.

MARINES FOR THE ISTHMUS.

Two Hundred Men Will Soon Be Sent to Panama.

Washington, June 2.—The 300 marines on the Isthmus of Panama, officers and men, are soon to be increased by about 200 others. The men will be taken down on the cruisers Prairie and Tacoma, which will leave the United States about the 15th instant with men being drawn from the Philadelphia and the New York navy yards. The Prairie also will take aboard 700 seamen from Newport, R. I., who are destined for ships on the Pacific coast. The 300 marines going down to the Isthmus, it is said, will relieve a like number who have been on duty there for a year and eight months. There is no likelihood, however, of getting any of the marines now stationed on the Isthmus away from there before the presidential election in the republic, so that the entire 500 will be available in the event there is any necessity for their service in keeping order.

SWITCHMEN OUT ON STATE ROAD

Over Hundred Men Quit Work. Want Union Recognized.

STRIKE STATEMENTS.

"Within the past eight or ten months we have dropped sixteen engines, each engine carrying a crew of four men, making, all told, sixty-four men. There have been no discharges except for neglect of duty on the Western and Atlantic railway."—Otto Best, superintendent of terminals on the Western and Atlantic road, with offices on Foundry street.

"At least one hundred to one hundred and fifty switchmen or trainmen on the Western and Atlantic dropped out today when the hour for adjustment of grievances arrived, no information having been received from President Thomas."—Val Fitzpatrick, vice grand master of Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

When Engineer Crowley's locomotive reached a switch on the Western and Atlantic railroad tracks in the western section of the city yesterday afternoon the rails were not in line with the course he had been taking every day as he came into Atlanta. Glancing out of his cab window and not seeing a switchman he gave a whistle signal. There was no response and as his train was late the fireman opened the switch to let the train in.

The absence of a switchman was due to the fact that the members of that organization in Atlanta had gone on strike because of a disagreement between the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and the Western and Atlantic railroad, a section of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis system, under the management of President Thomas.

For some months past trouble has been brewing between that railway and the trainmen, yard switchmen being members of that organization. As is usually the case, there are two sides to the controversy. The trainmen assert that members of that organization have been dropped from the pay roll and put out of work simply because they have refused to leave the union to which they have long been attached, while the road, speaking through Otto Best, in charge of the Atlanta yards, declares that any decrease in the force which may have recently occurred has been due wholly and solely to the fact that the services of those let out were not needed; that they could not be used by the road because of the great reduction in business.

In the yards about Foundry street there was a congestion of freight trains up to an early hour this morning, but no effort was made to in any way interfere with the moving of the passenger trains, especially those carrying the mails. About 8 o'clock in the evening a call for police was sent in from the office on Foundry street to police headquarters by Mr. Best for help because of the rocking of an engine at work, but when officers responded there was no one to apprehend.

Vice Grand Master Val Fitzpatrick, of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, is at Atlanta to take charge of the strike.

NEAL BANK DEPOSITORS MAKE STATEMENT

All Voters Should Read Before Making a Decision for the Next State Treasurer.

To the People of Georgia: The undersigned, who were depositors in the Neal bank recently failed, and now in the hands of receivers, representing themselves and eight or nine thousand other depositors, respectfully, but urgently and emphatically ask and beg the voters of the state NOT to give their support in any manner whatever or their vote, especially, to R. E. Park, present state treasurer and bank examiner. We base this appeal to you upon the following reasons:

First. As bank examiner he failed and neglected to examine the Neal bank from October 6, 1906, up to December 21, 1907, the day upon which its doors were closed. It was his sworn duty to have made that examination and had he done so there would have been no failure.

Second. TWO OR THREE DAYS BEFORE THE BANK FAILED HE DEPOSITED THEREIN $85,000 OF THE STATE'S MONEY, YOUR MONEY, AND OUR MONEY. HAD HE GIVEN PROPER ATTENTION TO HIS WORK HE WOULD HAVE KNOWN BY THE EXAMINATION HE SHOULD HAVE MADE, BUT WHICH HE FAILED TO MAKE, that the bank was then broken. Treasurer Park was either ignorant of the conditions or else he was trying to help a broken bank. Ignorance is no excuse for Mr. Park, especially when it was due to his own negligence, criminal negligence, it might be said with safety.

Third. Allowing the Neal bank to carry over $400,000 of worthless paper as a live asset he brought about a condition that could have been easily avoided. He sets up as an excuse that he did not have the right to throw out that dead paper. He could certainly have advised the people who suffered by his negligence through a report to the governor or through the press.

Fourth. If he had power and authority to appoint two or three or four examiners since the bank failed WHY DID HE NOT PUT THESE BANK EXAMINERS TO WORK BEFORE THE BANK FAILED? Had he done so there would have been no failure.

Fifth. Had Treasurer Park done his duty toward the Neal bank with the same zeal and regularity he drew his salary as bank examiner there would have been no failure; the children and grandchildren of the late John Neal, founder of the bank, would not now be practically penniless while the depositors, made up largely of hard-working people who had seen a dollar at a time, would not now be afraid of all banks, neither would they be abusing you as they are.

For these reasons, others can be given, we, the undersigned, urge the people of Georgia not to vote for Mr. Park for state treasurer and bank examiner.

ATTORNEY IS IN TROUBLE.

Disbarment Proceedings Against Duncan of Columbia, S. C.

Columbia, S. C., June 2.—(Special.)—The state supreme court today ordered John T. Duncan, a Columbia attorney, to show cause on June 8 why he should not be ruled for contempt or disbarred from practice, because of certain affidavits he presented in the case of the State v. Jesse Hunter. Hunter is a negro, sent up for five years for shooting at a constable, an act was charged by Solicitor Benet that Duncan, in his motion for a new trial, made a false affidavit, which he claimed was presented by a negro confessing to the crime, when, in reality, it was presented by another negro. Duncan made some sensational statements in court, but his motion was dismissed, and the order issued.

Millinery And Marguerites

Should you, gentle reader, chance to stroll into our Hat Rooms today (and we cordially urge you to do so) you'll probably pause for a moment and ask yourself if it isn't a party or something.

It really won't be a party, of course --but there will be great bowls of flowers--thousands of golden-hearted marguerites from the June fields--carrying into the realms of prosaic purchasing something of the freshness and grace and sunshine of the out-of-doors.

There will be groups of chatting women, too, intent upon their study and criticism of the Hats.

For the occasion, to be explicit, is an exhibition of Midsummer Millinery--a feature which we inaugurated a few seasons ago with much success.

The Hats are dreams, of course.

All the grandmothers' gardens you ever heard of seem to have been drawn on for the masses of lilies and roses and poppies and mignonette and wisteria and rich bloom that deck the hats so charmingly. All the snowy, airy chiffons and laces and ribbons seem to have been gathered up and caught into fairylike rosettes and ruches and folds.

All the feathery favorites seem to have contributed to the adornment of them.

All the skill and taste of clever designers seem to have been centered on the fashioning of these confections.

Therefore, you'll enjoy seeing and studying, and no doubt buying them.

The White Hats are emphatically good. With their billows of softly-folded chiffon, their smartly-set wings, their suggestion of fresh cleanness and cool daintiness, because the "all white" note has been sounded by fashion and the season for it is upon us.

Miss O'Toole and Miss Price, the respective heads of the sales and designing departments, will be leaving shortly for Paris to study for our Autumn and Winter Millinery. You can chat with them today--or any time about any phase of your hat problem. Possibly you have a commission of some sort which they could manage for you. They would be glad to do so.

But don't miss the Hats today. They'll be worth seeing.

Robert L. Jackson Arrested On Embezzlement Charge.

Savannah, Ga., June 2.—(Special).—Robert L. Jackson, secretary and treasurer of the Savannah Stationery and Printing Company, was arrested this afternoon on a warrant sworn out by J. P. Wheeler, president of the company, charging embezzlement. It is alleged that he appropriated about $10,500 of the concern's funds.

Jackson was bookkeeper for the company which was organized about two years ago. Not long after he began work for it, however, he began to buy up its stock until he had acquired a considerable interest. He was then made secretary and treasurer. It had been understood that he was obtaining the stock through assistance of some of his relatives.

Bond in the sum of $1,000 was made by Jackson, this afternoon. He is very well known in Savannah.

It is said the books, check books and other papers show evidence of extensive manipulation.

Mexican Legislators Yield on the Mining Law.

City of Mexico, June 2.—It is now stated in conservative circles that no new mining law will be enacted during the present session of congress. The vigorous opposition to the proposed anti-foreign clause in the proposed new legislation has borne fruit. The minister of Fomento, Señor Molina, has expressed a wish that any legislation having for its purpose a new mining code be given long and careful consideration. The present law, which has been in force since June 4, 1892, has been found to have been very satisfactory.

Deny Claim That Brotherhood Favors Hoke Smith's Election.

A number of members of the local branch of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers are asking, "Who is William McKinney?" This gentleman published a card in favor of Hoke Smith for governor, using the name of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers in so doing. The Atlanta members do not know Mr. McKinney, they resent his use of the order's name in such a connection, and wish it to be known that the Brotherhood is not giving its support to Mr. Smith. The card sent to The Constitution yesterday follows:

We noticed a published card of one William McKinney, of Marietta, Ga., in the Atlanta Journal of May 16, copy of which appears in circular distributed over the state indorsing the candidacy of Hoke Smith for governor. As our order does not allow politics discussed in the name of the organization, we take this method to notify the public that the B. L. E. as a body is not supporting Hoke Smith. We beg to say that if Mr. McKinney is a member of the order he has made a mistake in using its name indorsing the candidacy of any one for office.

We quote the law as laid down to us by the order, and which Mr. McKinney obligated himself to abide by when made a member. "The influence or sympathy of the brotherhood as a body shall never be enlisted or used in favor of any political or religious organization whatever." Furthermore, if Mr. McKinney is a member at all, he is not an active member, as he has not run an engine for a number of years; therefore he is not a prominent member, as the correspondence of The Atlanta Journal and those who issued the circular referred to above would have you believe he is and is not in position to know how organized labor stands.

Boats Between Mobile and Tampa.

Mobile, Ala., June 2.—The announcement that effective with steamer sailing from Mobile, June 9, the Mallory Steamship Company will inaugurate a service between Mobile and Tampa, confirms a rumor which has been in circulation for some time, particularly since the withdrawal of the Mallory line service to Brunswick, when it was felt that this company would not have withdrawn its service to that port, and from which it had built up a good business, unless it had in view a new field which offered brighter prospects for the future.

Death of F. M. Brown.

Macon, Ga., June 2.—(Special).—F. M. Brown, a citizen of East Macon, died at the family home last night after a lingering illness. He is survived by a wife, two sons and two daughters. The remains will be sent to his old home in Gallimore, Ga., for the funeral and interment.

LARGE CLASS AT WESLEYAN

Will Receive Diplomas at Today's Exercises.

Brown House, Macon, Ga., June 2.—(Special).—The annual faculty recital at Wesleyan college, this evening, proved a most pleasant affair and an entirely sympathetic audience heard the performers with a great deal of pleasure. This was the parting feature for the faculty of the present session and all efforts were put forth to make it an appropriate affair. Tomorrow will be commencement day and a large class of brilliant young ladies will receive their degrees and certificates.

Professor Lawton E. Evans, of Augusta, delivered the annual literary address before the college body and a large gathering of people in the chapel this morning. The occasion was a most inspiring one for those who are giving their lives to the higher education of women and the speaker was equal in every respect to his mission.

The board of trustees completed the work of the year this morning and adjournment took place. Plans were made for the raising of $100,000 to be added to the endowment during the coming year. The treasurer rendered a report that revealed healthy conditions, but more hard work will be done for the financial end of the business at the institution.

Miss Ellie Wylie was named voice teacher for another year. Misses Hamilton, Hall and Mrs. Woodward, were chosen piano teachers. Miss Narris was elected to teach piano, mandolin and guitar. Other teachers and officers are the same as last year.

Widow Needs Help; Husband Killed.

Macon, Ga., June 2.—(Special).—Mrs. Tommie Williams, widow of Ollie Williams, the man killed by Special Officer Jack Wilson at Crump's park recently, is in destitute circumstances at her home in Macon and has appealed for help. Efforts will be made to relieve her wants, along with those of her small children. Her case is a sad one.

Harrison Johnson Resigned.

Macon, Ga., June 2.—(Special).—Harrison Johnson, first lieutenant of the Macon Volunteers, resigned his position with the body last night and the place is now vacant. The officer has been one of the most faithful in the company and is a very popular man. He gave up on account of continued ill health. It is probable that William Burt will get his place when he returns from school at Tech.

Only Small Gold Bars Left.

New York, June 2.—Bankers who sought gold bars for export yesterday found that the small bars, called jewelry bars and containing about $500 in gold, were all that the assay office here had to sell. About $250,000 in these bars was taken. The assay office charge on them is slightly higher than on the large bars, being 5 cents on $100, instead of 4 cents.

FUN—Fun—Fun—morning, noon and night—wholesome, exhilarating outdoor fun that soothes, then builds anew the worn-out brain and body. Rides and climbs up wild, rugged paths, in a cool, invigorating atmosphere, with sunshine and blue skies overhead, on every side a panorama of hundreds of miles of mountains, thousands of feet high—that's Colorado, Nature's most delightful playground. There's golf, fishing, hunting, bathing, horseback riding—a host of pastimes, and, best of all, they can be enjoyed with very little expense. Hotel and boarding house rates are reasonable. So are the railroad rates. It is easy to reach Colorado on the

FORD UNKIND TO MEMPHIS

Gave Them Four Hits While Chappelle Was Lambasted.

Crackers Rolled Up Total of Twelve, Among Which Were Home Runs, Triples and Other Things Galore—Ford Was Given Great Support.

WHERE THEY PLAY TODAY.

Memphis in Atlanta. Ponce de Leon park. Game called at 4 o'clock.
Mobile in Birmingham.
Little Rock in Montgomery.
New Orleans in Nashville.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.

Atlanta 0, Memphis 0.
Little Rock 5, Montgomery 1.
New Orleans 5, Nashville 2.
Birmingham 4, Mobile 1.

Memphis put in a bad day on the occasion of her first game here this season at Ponce de Leon Park yesterday afternoon. Mr. R. Ford hurled for a full afternoon without having but four hits to show for his efforts. Chappelle was battered to an unmerciful degree by the Crackers, the result of which was that the Turtles were retired 7 to 0. There were hits and hits, some long and some short, with home runs by Dyer and Jordan, triples by Becker and Ford, and a double by Moran. Chappelle was hit in the total which unseated Chappelle and his backing. The locals hit Red Fisher for as many on the preceding day, and with them got but two runs, but yesterday they were more on the clustered variety, and counted the runs in larger bunches.

Ford did not once and anything like a look-in to the batters. When they got men on base he assumed complete control of the situation, and blocked them to a final shut out. He was supported in excellent fashion by his team mates, who pulled off a pair of thrilling double plays in which Bill Dyer figured prominently. The third batter was the goods at the bat and elsewhere. He hit out that business of throwing his hat over his head and letting the first one go by, and that appears to have helped some.

Began Right Away.
The Crackers began the run getting in the first when Moran walked and Becker tripled. In the fourth Dyer got started on Redmond's error, and scored when Jim Ford hit a triple. Chappelle couldn't throw the ball around his digging form. The ball smote him squarely in the back, and then Ford hit a triple to center, and that made another run.

Russell has long had a desire to hit, and it is believed he has cut into his own. His long drive was a punch that sailed over Donahue's head, with lots to spare, and every other time at bat he hit it squarely on the nose.
Jordan singled in the sixth. McMurray beat out one to the third base line, and Dyer hit for four things. Jordan's homer came in the eighth, and ended another.

The Memphis started pretty well. In the opening round Babb was hit by Ford and Redwald singled, but when Cranston shot one to Dyer the third baseman tagged Babb out, and by a quick throw snuffed Cranston at first.
Babb singled in the fourth, and was forced by Barward.

Donahue doubled in the fifth, and the next three died. Owens hit for two bases in the eighth, while Dyer's hit in the next two expired. That tells of the four hits made off Ford and how near the Turtles came to winning a game that wasn't very near in this day of nearness, heers, etcetera.

Moran gave an exhibition of winging that was well worth watching. He hit Owens, who doubled, at second by a beautiful heave, and had the ball in Wilkes' hands at second by the time Donahue reached there on his two-bagger.

The result was pleasing to a good crowd of fanatics. It was ladies' day, and there was at matinee on the slab.

ASK FOR INVESTIGATION ON CHARGES AGAINST BABB

The Atlanta club will today forward to President Kavanaugh, of the Southern League, a copy of a newspaper containing a story to the effect that Otis Stockdale charges Charles Babb, manager of the Memphis club, with throwing the game in 1907. In order to make the race between Atlanta and Memphis close for attendance-drawing purposes, the Atlanta club is equally desirous to prove or disprove them.

Manager Babb will make a like request of the league, and no doubt a court of inquiry will immediately act on the matter.
The Atlanta club is concerned, of course, inasmuch as it won the pennant. It desires to prove that the championship was taken fairly and squarely.

The Memphis team is equally desirous of showing itself to be the champion. Babb absolutely denies all the allegations.

SIDNEY SMITH'S BATTING GREAT HELP TO ATHLETICS
In big league circles Sid Smith is considered the catching find of the season. An accident to the hand has kept him out of the game for some time. Regarding this The Philadelphia North American says:

The accident to Sid Smith is an immense loss to the Athletics. Smith is not only an intelligent, finished catcher, but helped the House of Mack greatly with his batting.

PINKOLA TAKES A LONG SHOT, THIRD

Czar Was Second and Ordono, a Long Shot, Third.

Pinkola Finished in a Drive a Length Ahead—Czar Swerved as He Turned Into Stretch, and Swerve Probably Cost Him the Race.

Cincinnati, Ohio, June 2.—Pinkola, a chestnut gelding owned by W. H. Fizer, won the twenty-second renewal of the Latonia derby this afternoon in a drive by a length from Czar with Ordono, a long shot, third.
Strung out over a sixteenth of a mile, came the balance of the field, reeling and jostling each other from their long journey of a mile and a half.
Starter Hoffmann got them off to a good start, and Little Steele took Honesty to the front. Minder, on Pinkola, got off well, and he began forcing the pace. At the three-quarters Honesty was taken in a little, and Minder rushed Pinkola off in the lead, which he held throughout the journey. Czar, for a mile, laid behind the leader, but at a moment it looked as though Czar would win. He passed the fast-tiring Honesty and set sail for the leader. But it was no use. Turning into the stretch, Minder reached for his whip and the big colt swerved a little. This probably cost him the race, and before he was able to get him on his feet again, Pinkola was four lengths to the good.

Down the stretch Czar made a gallant effort to overtake Pinkola, but the son of Pinkoat held on and won driving. Czar was five lengths in front of Ordono, who closed fast after passing the mile. Two lengths back of Ordono came Sir Cleges, followed by W. T. Overton and Honest, with Keep Moving, the favorite in the race, a poor last, never being better than fourth at the start.

The other races were all well contested. The Pari-Mutuel system of betting was in vogue, and was very popular. Over $20,000 was wagered on the derby alone.

RACE—Six furlongs: Wool Sandala, 109 (Held), $128.25 straight, $44.70 place, $17.70 show, won; Al Muller, 121 (Martini), $120 place, $10.75 show, second; Deuce, 102 (Pickens), $85.75 show, third. Time, 1:13 4-5.

Walter Johnson, the Montana wonder, has notified Joe Cantillon that he will report at Washington June 9. The Nationals already fire staff will be stronger than ever when he is available.
